GREAT BRITAIN.

Supposed Fenian Attempt to Fire Buckingham Palace—Two Arrests.

LONDON, Wednesday morning, April 22—2 o'clock.

An alarming report has just been received at the newspaper offices in this city.

It is said that two men, supposed to be Fenians, were arrested at a late hour to-night near the servants' door of Buckingham Palace. They were carrying a hamper, which on being opened was found to contain a gallon of liquid phosphorus, or "Greek fire." The parties made a desperate resistance and were with difficulty secured. A third person, who was in company with those bearing the basket, fled as soon as the latter were seized and escaped all pursuit.

Parliamentary Proceedings—Executions of Criminals to be Conducted in Private.

LONDON, Tuesday, April 21—Midnight.

In the House of Commons to-night a bill requiring all executions of criminals by hanging to be conducted in private was considered in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. CHARLES GILPIN, member for the Borough of Northampton, moved an amendment abolishing capital punishment.

Mr. GREGORY and Mr. MILL opposed the motion.

Mr. MILL, in the course of his speech against the amendment, said he was sorry to place himself in opposition to those who desired to mollify our criminal law. But by their efforts the application of the death penalty was now confined to cases of murder. At this point he thought they should stop, and allow the punishment of death to remain as the penalty for the commission of the highest crime known to the law. He deprecated the change which was proposed from capital punishment to imprisonment for life; the latter punishment, he declared, was torture of the most fearful character.

The amendment moved by Mr. GILPIN was lost, and the original bill was agreed to by the Committee.

The Trial of the Alleged Clerkenwell Conspirators—Testimony for the Prosecution.

LONDON, Tuesday, April 21—Evening.

The trial of the Fenian prisoners, charged with causing the Clerkenwell explosion, was resumed at 10 o'clock this morning.

MULLANEY, the informer, entered the witness-box and was cross-examined by the counsel for the defence. He testified that he had acted as a Fenian Centre; boarded with MURPHY and met at his house W. DESMOND, one of the prisoners at the bar; meetings of the conspirators were held at MURPHY's house on the 2d and 13th of December, at which he was present; he was asked on both occasions by ENGLISH and the two DESMONDS to go to the explosion.

The Judge, interrupting, questioned the witness as follows:

Was the word explosion used?

Witness replied—I don't know.

Judge—You must answer—yes or no.

Witness—No.

Witness, on further cross-examination, stated that he had resolved to turn informer, because he feared ENGLISH would offer himself as Queen's evidence, the latter having threatened to do so.

The cross-examination of this witness was very long and protracted.

VAUGHN, the other informer, was then called by the counsel for the Crown, and was examined by the Solicitor General. He testified that he joined the Fenian organization in 1865; was sworn into the order by T. DESMOND, one of the prisoners on trial; saw the same DESMOND about noon on the day of the explosion, when DESMOND informed him of the plot for the release of BURKE by blowing up the prison wall. Witness swore positively that the prisoners BARRETT, ENGLISH and the two DESMONDS were engaged in the conspiracy.

On cross-examination witness said he was a tailor by trade; had been in the army; would not say whether he was a deserter; acknowledged that he was given to drink and might have been out of his mind at times; contradicted his direct testimony by stating that he had never been sworn into the Fenian Order; stated that his support had been provided for by the Police authorities since his offer to give testimony, and that he expected to get the reward offered for revealing the conspiracy.

A clerk and a carman in the employ of the Messrs. DEALOIS, powder dealers, were severally sworn, and testified to the sale and delivery of the powder to one of the conspirators.

The Court then adjourned until to-morrow morning.

This afternoon official dispatches were received at the India Office from Gen. NAPIER, dated April 1. The General reports that on that day he reached Abdicono, only thirty miles from Magdala, with the advance column of the expedition. The rear was close at hand, and the whole expedition would concentrate on the left bank of the river Jemma. The Abyssinian King was posted with his army on the Bassels. The Evidence Against Whelan, the Alleged Murderer of D'Arcy McGee—The McDonald Case.

OTTAWA, Tuesday, April 21.

The evidence against WHELAN, who is suspected of the murder of D'ARCY MCGEE, is daily becoming stronger. Since his arrest he has voluntarily made several important admissions. PATRICK BUCKLEY, Doorkeeper of the House of Commons, has been arrested in consequence of the contradictory nature of his evidence before the Police magistrate. The authorities continue to act with great vigilance, and inquiry is pushed in every direction where it may be possible to obtain information.

From correspondence laid before the House yesterday in reference to the abduction of ALLAN MCDONALD, Lord MONCK, while acknowledging Mr. SEWARD's courtesy as characteristic of his conduct on every occasion in which His Excellency has had to appeal to him, rather snubs the British Ambassador for declining to accept Mr. SEWARD's offer to surrender MCDONALD without giving His Excellency an opportunity of informing him of all the facts.

Verdicts were also rendered to-day in the same Court against GEORGE DOUSMAN, Jr., and CHRISTOPHER AGALBAUGH, prominent tobacconists in this city, indicted for the same offence, and also for conspiracy to defraud the United States and for having large quantities of property in their possession with the intent to defraud the Government. Resolved, That the resolutions of impeachment against ANDREW JOHNSON, President of the United States, passed Feb. 24, 1868, and all the proceedings of the House amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto, be and the same are hereby rescinded, and that the Managers on the part of the House be called from further proceedings of the said impeachment.

Mr. MULLINS rose to move to lay the resolution on the table.

Mr. WASHBURNE, of Illinois, inquired whether the Speaker ruled that the resolution was a question of privilege.

The Speaker ruled that it was a question of privilege.

Mr. WASHBURNE objected to its reception and consideration.

Mr. ROBINSON inquired whether that objection could deprive him of his right to argue in support of the resolution.

The Speaker replied that it could, and referred to the rule on the subject, and to the ruling in former Congresses. The question would be whether the House would now consider the resolution. The vote was taken by yeas and nays, and resulted, yeas 18, nays 91—a party vote.

So the House refused to consider the resolution.

GEN. SHERMAN AND THE IMPEACHMENT MANAGERS.

Mr. PHELPS offered as a question of privilege a resolution, reciting a paragraph which had appeared in the Baltimore American of April 15, to the effect that Lieut.-Gen. SHERMAN had been before the Impeachment Managers, and had been minutely examined in reference to his interview with the President, and that it was understood that the declination of Gen. BUTLER to proceed with the cross-examination of Gen. SHERMAN was in view of that preliminary examination, and providing for the appointment of a select committee to examine into the facts in order to vindicate the Managers from such aspersions.

Mr. WASHBURNE, of Illinois, inquired whether the resolution was a question of privilege.

The Speaker decided that it was not, and gave the reasons for the decision. He submitted the question to the House, and the House decided in the same way.

Mr. ELDRIDGE asked unanimous consent to have the resolution of Mr. PHELPS agreed to, but Mr. KELSEY objected.

Also the Senate bill for the relief of JOHN S. CUNNINGHAM, Paymaster of the United States Navy, to allow him $1,671 money stolen from the money chest of the frigate Colorado.

After explanation by Mr. PIKE, in answer to the various questions, the bill was passed.

Also the House bill to amend certain acts in relation to the navy and marine corps. It limits the number of officers, non-commissioned officers and musicians of the marine corps to the number authorized by the act of March 2, 1867, and of privates to 1,500, now 3,000. The commissions of the present officers are not to be vacated, but no appointment is to be made in any of the grades until the number is reduced below the number provided by other sections of the bill. It abolishes the grades of mate, and of the third assistant engineer in the navy, and repeals all acts authorizing temporary acting officers in the navy.

After considerable discussion the bill was passed.

Also, a joint resolution in relation to vessels enrolled and licensed for employment in the coasting trade and fisheries.

The morning hour expired, and the bill went over until the next morning hour.

THE BANKRUPT ACT.

The House then, at 2 o'clock, proceeded to the consideration of the bill reported yesterday by Mr. JENCKES, for the amendment of the Bankruptcy act, and Mr. JENCKES proceeded to explain its provisions.

Mr. ELIOT moved to amend the first section by making it read Jan. 1, 1869, instead of June 1, 1869.

Mr. PAINE desired to move an amendment to insert in the first section, before the word "bankruptcy," the word "voluntary."

Mr. JENCKES declined to let the amendment be offered, saying that it applied to both forms of bankruptcy.

Mr. DAWES made some remarks against the policy of engrafting on the permanent Bankruptcy law of the country the principle that a man can be disparaged under it who is unable to pay 50 per cent. of his indebtedness. The idea of that 50 per cent. provision was a good one. It was to hold out to an insolvent, at the earliest period of his insolvency, an inducement to come forward and notify his creditors, and distribute his property among them.

Mr. JENCKES declared that there was nothing like that 50 per cent. provision in the bankruptcy or insolvent system of any State or nation except in the case of Massachusetts.

Mr. DAWES showed how well the provision worked in Massachusetts, and declared that the Bankrupt law of that State could not have been maintained without that provision.

Mr. PAINE admitted the argument might be good in cases of voluntary bankruptcy, but it did not apply at all to cases of involuntary bankruptcy. He gave notice that an effort would soon be made to make the provisions of the bill absolute for the discharge of debtors, no matter what proportion of their indebtedness they may be able to pay.

Mr. MAYNARD desired to offer an amendment limiting the application of the extension of time for those who cannot pay fifty per cent. to debts contracted subsequently to the passage of the original bill.

Mr. JENCKES declined to allow the amendment to be offered, on the ground that it was contrary to the principle of the bill. He agreed that while the fifty per cent. provision might be applicable to a compact State like Massachusetts, it was not applicable to the whole country; and, even Massachusetts had required ten years to educate the commercial people up to it. In conclusion, he moved the previous question.

The previous question was seconded, and the House proceeded to vote.

The first question was on Mr. ELIOT's amendment to limit the time for the extension of the provision allowing discharge where the debtors cannot pay fifty per cent. of their indebtedness to the 1st of January, 1869, instead of the 1st of June, 1869.

On a vote by tellers there were yeas 42, nays 49, no quorum voting.

Mr. WASHBURNE, of Illinois, moved, at 3 o'clock, that the House adjourn.

Mr. JENCKES demanded the yeas and nays, appealing to the House to pass the bill in some shape.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken, and resulted—yeas 54, nays 57.

The House refused to adjourn.

Mr. JENCKES consented to Mr. ELIOT's amendment being adopted, and then the bill was passed, yeas 75, nays 44. The bill is as follows:

A bill in amendment to an act entitled "An act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States," approved March 2, 1867.

Be it enacted, &c., That the provisions of the second clause of the 33d section of said act shall not apply to the cases of proceedings in bankruptcy commenced prior to the first day of January, 1869, and time, during which the operation of the provisions of said clause is postponed, shall be extended until the said first day of January, 1869, and said clause is hereby so amended to read as follows:

In all proceedings in bankruptcy commenced after the first day of June, 1869, no discharge shall be granted to a debtor whose assets shall not be equal to fifty per centum of the claims proved against his estate, upon which he shall be liable as the principal debtor, unless the assent in writing of a majority in number and value of his creditors to whom he shall have become liable as principal debtor and who shall have proved their claims, be filed in the case at or before the time of the hearing of the application for discharge.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That said act be further amended as follows: The phrase "presented or defended," in the 14th section of said act, shall read "prosecuted or defended." The phrase "nor resident debtors," in line 5, section 22, of the act as printed in the Statutes at Large, shall read "no resident creditors;" that the word "or," in the next to the last line of the 39th section of the act, shall read "and;" that the phrase "section 13," in the 42d section, shall read "section 11;" and the phrase "or spends any part thereof in gaming," in the 44th section of said act, shall read "or shall spend any part thereof in gaming;" and that the words "with the Senior Register or," and the phrase "to be delivered to the Register," in the 47th section of said act, be stricken out.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That the Registers in Bankruptcy shall have power to administer oaths in all cases and in relation to all matters in which oaths may be administered by Commissioners of the Circuit Courts of the United States, and such Commissioners may take proof of debts in bankruptcy in all cases, subject to the revision of such proofs by the Register and by the Court, according to the provisions of said act.

Mr. BANKS presented a memorial of the members of the Massachusetts Legislature in favor of a railroad between New-York and Washington, which was referred to the Committee on Roads and Canals.

The House then, at 3:30 adjourned.

NEW-YORK.

Gov. Fenton Signs the Erie Railroad Bill.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ALBANY, Tuesday, April 21.

Gov. FENTON this evening signed the Erie Railroad bill, as I predicted he would, and the late issue of $10,000,000 Erie bonds has thus been legalized. This matter having been arranged to the mutual and pecuniary satisfaction of the Erie Directors and the members of the Legislature, it is believed the latter will speedily finish up their other business and close the session—"a consummation devoutly to be wished" by all tax-payers.

The Arcade Railroad Bill in the State Senate—Business in the Assembly—Prospect of a Speedy Adjournment.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Tuesday, April 21.

The Senate to-day was engaged all through the morning session in discussing the Arcade Railroad bill. Nothing definite came of it before the hour of adjournment, at 1 o'clock. It comes up again at 4 o'clock, with a prospect that it will be carried, and go to the Governor and be vetoed.

The House was reading bills a third time to-day, all the day long, and that was the burden of its song.

There are no developments as yet in regard to the alleged understanding between DREW and VANDERBILT; but many persons affect to believe that neither party cared a rush which side won in the controversy—it was all grist at their mill.

It looks now as if the Assembly were getting ready for a quick transit, notwithstanding Mr. TOPLIFF's resolution about pay, as if it was ready now, and here, to "die and make no sign," or rather as if it were intent and meaning to prevent a sign. LEO.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

NOMINATION OF A CHIEF ENGINEER FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT FIRE DEPARTMENT.—The Board of Officers of the Eastern District Fire Department met last evening at Firemen's Hall, Fourth-street, to nominate a Chief-Engineer in place of THOMAS M. DOYLE, whose term expires. There was a very large attendance of the members and friends of the Department. The Board organized, with Mr. DOYLE as chairman, and Mr. JOHN GREANY, Secretary. The present Chief was renominated, but declined in an affecting speech. The following gentlemen were then put in nomination: J. W. Smith, Hose Company No. 3; W. M. Minaud, Engine Company No. 4; Rodney Thursby, Engine Company No. 2. On the first ballot the vote stood:

Smith, 23; Minaud, 8; Thursby 6. Mr. SMITH was thereupon declared the regular nominee, and the Board adjourned. The election will take place on the evening of the 27th inst.

BOND ROBBERY.—FRANCIS JACKSON, a carman, was arrested yesterday by Officer WONDERLY, of the Forty-fourth Precinct, on suspicion of having on the night of the 17th inst. burglariously entered the house of Mr. WM. HUNTER, No. 95 Fort Greene-place, near the corner of Fulton-avenue, and, by means of false keys, of having opened the safe, and stolen therefrom Western Union Telegraph coupon bonds to the amount of $3,700. The loss of the bonds was discovered on the morning of the 18th inst., and Mr. HUNTER learning from his domestic that JACKSON had inquired of her the position of the safe in the house, had him arrested. JACKSON says he will be able to establish his innocence beyond a doubt. He will be taken before Justice MOREHOUSE to-day for examination.

THE STANWIX HALL TRAGEDY.

Proceedings in the Trial of Gen. Cole for the Murder of L. Harris Hiscock.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ALBANY, Tuesday, April 21.

The Court convened at 10 o'clock, Judge INGRAHAM presiding. Hon. HENRY SMITH, District-Attorney, was supported by Messrs. TREMAIN and SEDGWICK, while Messrs. HADLEY, PARKER and MITCHELL appeared for the defence. The room was filled with spectators watching the proceedings.

Mr. HADLEY moved that the panel of jurors be quashed, on the ground that they were not the same as those drawn at a Court of Oyer and Terminer held in January last, who had been wholly withdrawn. District-Attorney SMITH objected. The challenge was overruled. The Clerk administered the customary warning to Gen. COLE, respecting his right to challenge, and the drawing of the jury was proceeded with. Nearly every person was challenged, leaving at 2 o'clock, when the Court adjourned for dinner, only four jurymen selected, and the whole panel exhausted. The Sheriff was directed to call twenty more, and after the recess the drawing proceeded. Nearly every objection was taken on the ground that an opinion had been formed. Only one additional juryman was obtained at the afternoon session, and one hundred were ordered to be summoned for to-morrow morning, when the Court adjourned.

Trial of Gen. Geo. W. Cole for the Murder of Hon. L. Harris Hiscock.

From Our Special Correspondent.

ALBANY, Tuesday, April 21, 1868.

SECOND DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

The Court convened promptly at 10 o'clock this morning, Judge DANIEL P. INGRAHAM presiding, with THOS. SMITH and L. C. TUTTLE as Associate Justices. This being a Special Term of the Oyer and Terminer, the regular Judge of the Circuit (PECKHAM) was unable to attend, and hence Judge INGRAHAM, of New-York, was assigned to try the case. Beyond the large number of persons who had been summoned as jurors, the crowd of spectators in the court-room to-day was numerous. The prisoner, Gen. COLE, occupied a seat near his counsel and watched the proceeding with close and nervous interest. He appears to have suffered in health from his long confinement, and has a pale and sallow look. He has coarse, jet-black hair, eyebrows and mustache, piercing black eyes, prominent chin, thick neck and a very determined and not altogether pleasing expression of countenance. A brother of Mr. HISCOCK was also in Court during the day. The counsel for the prosecution are HENRY SMITH, District-Attorney of Albany County; Hon. LYMAN TREMAINE, of Albany, and Hon. CHARLES SEDGWICK, of Syracuse. The prisoner's counsel are Ex-Judge AMASA J. PARKER and Ex-District-Attorney J. K. HADLEY, of Albany; JAMES T. BRADY, of New-York, and DAVID G. MITCHELL, of Syracuse. Mr. BRADY has not made his appearance yet, but is expected to-morrow.

On the opening of the Court the prosecution proceeded immediately to the task of impaneling a jury, which proved to be very slow work. The defence exercised the right of challenge in the most rigorous manner, asking each juror his age, whether he was married or single, if married, whether he had any children, in what newspaper he read the account of the homicide, &c., &c., besides the usual questions relating to the formation or expression of an opinion. Several jurors against whom no disqualification could be found, were challenged by the defence peremptorily. The larger portion had formed and expressed a decided opinion. By 2 P. M. the panel of 60 jurors was exhausted, and only four had been sworn in. The Court then took a recess till 4 P. M., and meantime ordered twenty new jurors to be summoned. The prospect is that it will take all day Wednesday to get a jury. Since the postponement of the trial from the January Term two witnesses, regarded by the defence as highly important, if not material, have died. They were both ladies residing in Syracuse, and both died in childbirth.

CONTINENTAL SUMMARY.

Ministerial Changes—Probability of War—Health of the Prince Imperial—The Law on Public Meetings—The Impeachment Trial—The Jews in Roumania.

From our Own Correspondent.

PARIS, Tuesday, April 7, 1868.

My letter to-day will be short, but the facts which it contains are of more than usual importance. They are derived from a source which leaves no doubt as to their correctness.

MINISTERIAL CHANGES.

For some time past rumors of contemplated changes in the constitution of the present ministry have been circulating in the clubs and salons. They have been founded, however, on speculations suggested by passing events, and have not been traceable to any well-informed source. I believe that I am now in a position to state to you that there is really a programme of this kind under consideration, and that the following are the changes likely to result from it.

It is proposed to recall M. DROUYN DE L'HUYS to the post of Minister of Foreign Affairs in view of certain eventualities which I shall notice hereafter. M. PINARD, who has fulfilled all the expectations formed of his abilities as an administrator and debater, is to be transferred from the Ministry of the Interior to that of Justice, and will be succeeded in his present position by M. ERNEST LEROY, Prefect of Rouen. M. DURUY is to retire, his resignation, or rather dismissal, being a concession to the Clerical Party—or, in other words, a sop to the Electoral Cerberus.

The only obstacle to these arrangements is the personal antagonism existing between M. DROUYN DE L'HUYS and M. ROUHER. Their common presence in the same Cabinet is next to impossible. If, therefore, the motives which dictate the recall of M. DROUYN DE L'HUYS assume a pressing character, the retirement of M. ROUHER may be regarded as certain.

PROBABILITY OF WAR.

Although the Ministerial journals are daily felicitating the public on the unclouded aspect of the political atmosphere abroad as well as at home, it is certain that in Ministerial circles such is not the prevailing view of things. It is considered there that a couple of specks are looming up in the European horizon, which will not only render war probable, but probable within a very short period, say sixty days. These stormy portents are the Dano-Prussian question and the intrigues of Russia in the Danubian Principalities. The ministerial organs at Berlin and St. Petersburg endeavor, I know, to tranquilize public apprehension on the subject, but it is not the less certain that both these questions are now occupying the anxious attention of the French Government. It is in view of their gravity that the recall of M. DROUYN DE L'HUYS to the management of the Department of Foreign Affairs is now being considered.

Whilst referring to this statesman, let me add that I have forwarded you an interesting memoir by him on mutual rights, which he read on Saturday at the Academy of Moral and Political Sciences. The frequent references made to the course of the United States Government during the Crimean war imparts to this document a particular interest for your readers.

HEALTH OF THE PRINCE IMPERIAL.

Notwithstanding the frequent assurances put forth as to the improved health of the Prince Imperial, it is not the less a fact that his condition gives his physicians a great deal of concern. They have ordered him to the seaside, in the hopes that the salt atmosphere will brace up his constitution. This news had a depressing influence yesterday on the Bourse when it was whispered about.

THE LAW ON PUBLIC MEETINGS.

I mentioned to you in my last that there was some reason to apprehend that the Senate would send back to the Corps Legislatif the law on the right of reunion. The speculation was based on the fact that the committee appointed to consider it was composed of members notoriously hostile to the law, and that at its first meeting it named a reporter who had declared himself unqualifiedly opposed to it. An article which subsequently appeared in La France, which is regarded as a sort of Senatorial organ, confirmed the impressions thus created and its predictions that we are on the eve of a conflict between the two Chambers, produced a very uneasy feeling in the public mind. The semi-official journals ridiculed the assumptions of their contemporary, but as the facts stated by it were undeniable, their arguments would have produced but little effect but for a fresh consideration of the subject by the France itself, inspired evidently by its senatorial patrons. From its article of yesterday it would seem that at the very time it expressed itself so uneasy in regard to the probable rejection of the law, it was fully satisfied that the Senate would pass it:

"There is in that body," it says, "a great liberal party, which, since the year 1860, has brilliantly manifested itself by voting all the constitutional reforms which have marked a fresh phase in the march of our institutions, and which, up to the present time, has united an immense majority in favor of all wisely liberal and progressive ideas. Our confidence is, therefore, founded on antecedents which the Senate cannot at present disavow."

It is difficult to account for such inconsistencies of statement on the part of a journal so respectable and so ably conducted as La France, unless it is to be attributed to a change of purpose on the part of the opponents of the law, and which has been brought about by the strong feeling displayed on the subject.

THE IMPEACHMENT TRIAL.

The interest manifested in the trial of President JOHNSON by the French Press is scarcely exceeded by that exhibited in America. The proceedings are watched with the greatest eagerness, and every journal devotes regularly a portion of its space to them. In fact, French politics have latterly given place in public attention to those of Great Britain and the United States. The questions agitated there have so marked though indirect a bearing upon the issues which divide French politicians, that it is natural they should excite a strong feeling of sympathy.

AUSTRIA AND THE CONCORDAT.

I learn from Vienna that the President of the Ministry, Prince Carl Von Auersperg, has written a letter in reply to the recent remonstrance of fourteen church dignitaries against the Civil Marriage bill. The minister declares that during the debate upon that bill in the Reichsrath the most ample opportunity was given for the freest discussion of its provisions, an opportunity which was not neglected. The stage which the bill has now arrived at imposes upon the ministry the duty of respectfully abstaining from any interference. No present law empowers the courts to take cognizance of the question of religious teaching, or the administration of the church's own affairs. Guarantees for the future are afforded by articles 14 and 15 of the Constitution.

The Government puts forward no claims extending beyond the legitimate limits of state power. It entertains the highest regard for religious liberty, and would at all times be ready to afford powerful support to the authority of the Church. But equally as the Government has no intention of passing beyond the limits of state authority, just as little can it assist in this being done by others. The Government therefore declines entering upon that part of the remonstrance which even, although unintentionally, makes the obligations imposed upon State officials by the Constitution the subject of an interpretation calculated to lead the sentiment of duty in the minds of those officials astray.

THE JEWS IN ROUMANIA.

I do not know when I have seen a stronger feeling of indignation manifested than was exhibited when the news reached here of the abominable measure of persecution against the Hebrew community which was proposed in the Roumanian Chamber of Deputies. The energetic manner in which the Minister of the Interior, M. BRATIANO, repudiated the bill, and the unequivocal condemnation which the Chamber pronounced upon it by its vote, have imparted as strong a feeling of satisfaction. The idea that in times like these such a measure could be seriously proposed startled people here, and taken in connection with the determined attitude assumed by the Ultramontaine Party, led them to ask themselves whether this was not the first step toward the religious war with which its organs are threatening us.

Recovery of Confederate Property in Europe—Report of the Secretary of the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, April 21.

The Secretary of the Treasury sent a communication to the House yesterday, in reply to a resolution concerning the efforts of the Department for the recovery of Confederate property in Europe, and contracts with agents or attorneys in relation thereto. Also information concerning a settlement made by the firm of FRASER, TRENHOLM & Co. The Secretary says:

"The efforts of the Government to recover Confederate property abroad have not been confined to Europe, but have been extended to other parts of the world, especially to the West Indies, in which the exertions have been diligently and successfully prosecuted; but as the resolution of the House applied only to such efforts made in Europe, this only constitutes the subject of the Secretary's communication. The Secretary says proceedings were commenced soon after the cessation of hostilities in the Southern States. The result of all these arrangements has been the actual recovery of property of the Confederates to a large amount, with much more which it is confidently believed will in due time be recovered. To end the controversy, or suits in England, with FRASER, TRENHOLM & Co., an arrangement was made with them in September, 1867, which was approved by the President, concerned in the United States receiving, and that from paying precisely that which the United States may lawfully claim in a Court of Chancery, neither more nor less, in substance as follows: Delivering up the property of the Confederate States, unless the same be subject to excepted legal or equitable undoubted claims of theirs, valid in law, on contracts made during their agency for the Confederates. The agreement secures all to which the United States are entitled. This Government has recovered, by suit in Admiralty, four of the cruisers of the Confederate Government, namely: The Sumter, Tallahassee, Shenandoah and Rappahannock, together with some other miscellaneous parcels and property, amounting in proceeds to $160,476. In these cases the Government has steadily contended that it has the right in law to take possession of any public property of the Confederates wherever it may be found, whether at home or in foreign countries, claiming power to do this summarily and as of right, and of course in the United States or on the high seas, demanding of the foreign courts of law in foreign countries, that they shall cooperate in enabling the United States to reclaim the property by suit if brought into the ports of any such foreign Government. Suits are pending in England against sundry parties, among which are the Blakeny Ordnance Company, to recover ordnance contracted for by the Confederates, as also against two of the financial agents of the Confederates, namely: JAMES B. FERGUSON and COLIN MCRAE. The archives of the so-called Confederate Government, now in possession of the United States, show that many millions were received and disbursed by MCRAE on Confederate loans in Europe, and the object of the suit is to reach any balance which may have remained on his hands at the time of the extinction of the Confederacy. There is only one suit in France, but that is of considerable importance as to the principle to be decided. It is against the wealthy ship-building firm of ARMAN FILS & Co., to recover a large amount placed in their hands to be employed in the construction of a ship or ships-of-war for the use of the Confederate Government. The case has not yet come to an issue. The receipts of the United States Treasurer, Mr. SPINNER, special agent on account of Confederate property recovered in Europe, show the following result: Proceeds from the sale of the steamer Shenandoah, $108,632 18; from the sale of the Sumter and Tallahassee, $32,715 48; from R. P. WALLER, Confederate Agent, $2,809 49. Total, $144,157 15. The disbursements on account of the above were $90,308 76 for counsels' fees, special agents, &c. Hon. CALEB CUSHING received a fee of $5,000. The Secretary of the Treasury says much exaggeration existed as to the balance remaining in the hands of the Confederates abroad.

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

CONFISCATION—FORFEITURE UNDER THE ACT OF 1861—TO WHAT ACT THE PENAL CONSEQUENCE ATTACHES—PARDON—ITS EFFECT ON THE RIGHTS OF THE OWNER—DECISION IN THE ARMSTRONG CASE.

Armstrong Foundry, John Armstrong, claimant vs. the United States.—Appeal from the Circuit Court for the Eastern District of Louisiana. This is a proceeding for forfeiture under the Confiscation act of Aug. 6, 1861. It raises and settles two important questions: First, whether, under that act, the property offending by use or employment in aid of insurrection or resistance to the execution of the laws shall be "lawful subject of prize and capture," by force of the enactment, from the date of the offence, and whether the language of the act amounts to a legal declaration of the forfeiture; and, second, the effect of a pardon upon the rights of the person whose property has so offended.

The record in this case exhibits a proceeding for condemnation under the act of Aug. 6, 1861, resembling in its general features the proceeding in the case of the Union Insurance Company vs. The United States, just disposed of [and recently reported in this paper.—REP.] The suit was commenced by libel of information filed in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Louisiana, in which it was charged that certain property in New-Orleans, known as Armstrong's Foundry, had been seized as forfeited to the United States, by reason of having been used with the consent of the owner in aid of the rebellion. This libel closed with the usual prayer for condemnation.

A claim was interposed by Armstrong as owner, and another claim was interposed by the Citizens' Bank as mortgagee. Armstrong also pleaded the amnesty offered by President Lincoln, and his acceptance of it and compliance with its terms. On the hearing the plea of pardon was rejected, and a decree of condemnation was rendered. Armstrong also appealed. Subsequently, and while the cause was pending in this Court, Armstrong received a full pardon from the President of the United States, and at this term has been allowed, in conformity with the usual course in admiralty cases, to plead the new matter, and to file with his plea a statement of facts agreed between his counsel and the Attorney-General, showing, among other things, that he had complied with all the conditions of the pardon granted to him.

Upon this case it is necessary to consider a single question only. It was insisted in argument that the pardon pleaded by the appellant cannot avail to relieve him from the forfeiture of the property seized, because the liability to seizure arose, under the statute, from the mode in which the property was employed, and was not to be regarded as a penal consequence of the act of the owner.

We are unable to concur in this view. We think it clear that the statute regarded the consent of the owner to the employment of his property in aid of the rebellion as an offence, and inflicted forfeiture as a penalty. The general pardon of Armstrong, therefore, relieved him of so much of the penalty as accrued to the United States. We think it unnecessary to express any opinion at present in relation to the rights of the informer. The proceedings below related to a seizure of land, and though conducted under the statute in the forms of admiralty, must be regarded as a case of common law jurisdiction, a final decision in which can be reviewed here only on writ of error.

The decree of the Circuit Court, therefore, must be reversed as irregular, and the cause remanded, with directions to allow a new trial, the proceedings in which shall be conformed, in respect to trial by jury and exceptions to evidence, to the course of the common law.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT—SOUTHERN DISTRICT.

PRACTICE—APPLICATION TO BE MADE A PARTY.

Charles R. Coleman vs. D. Randolph Martin et al.—BLATCHFORD, J.—This is an application made to the Court by petition by Charles H. Stewart, who is not a party to this suit, praying that he may be made a party defendant. The ground of his application is, that by reason of certain matters which he sets forth, he may be held both legally and morally responsible, pecuniarily and personally, for certain transactions of which the plaintiff complains in his bill, and that the decree of this Court in this suit will have "a powerful influence" in contributing to that result. The decree of this Court in this suit can in no manner bind or affect the petitioner in a legal sense, and it was never known that a person not a party to a suit in personam could compel a plaintiff to make him a party. The present defendants do not raise the objection that the petitioner should be made a party. This being so, the plaintiff is left free to sue whom he pleases, subject only to the power of the Court at any time to compel him to make a party defendant any person whom it is necessary to make a party in order to make a decree fully effective against those who are already parties. It does not appear that the defendant is such a necessary party. He has no interest, in a legal sense, in the subject-matter of this suit, which is only a suit to compel the defendant Martin to surrender to be canceled certain certificates of stock and bonds, and to compel the defendants Martin and Fant, as trustees, to release and cancel a certain deed of trust, and to compel Martin to account with the plaintiff for certain stock, bonds and moneys, and to enjoin Martin from transferring or disposing of certain stock and bonds. In these matters, which are personal claims against Martin and Fant, the petitioner has no interest. In a suit in rem, where a court has jurisdiction over the res, and its decree affects the interest in the res of all persons who have any interest in the res, a person who has a lien or claim upon, or other interest in the res is allowed to intervene and be heard for his own interest in the res. The theory of this is, that the person, by his interest in the res, has an interest, in a legal sense, in the subject-matter of the controversy. But in a suit in personam, a person not a party to the suit can have no interest, in a legal sense, in a claim made in the suit personally against a defendant therein, unless it is necessary that such person not a party should be made a party, in order properly to enforce such claim.

The prayer of the petition is denied.

L. R. Marsh for the petitioner, E. L. Lowe for the plaintiff.

Before Judge Blatchford.

At the opening of the Court yesterday morning, the day calendar in admiralty was called, and the first case thereon being ready, was taken up.

John Low, Jr., vs. The Steamship Western Metropolis, &c.—This is a libel of John Low, Jr., owner of the schooner Triumph and her cargo, against the steamer Western Metropolis, her tackle, &c., in a cause of collision. The libel sets forth that on or about the 17th day of March, 1864, the schooner Triumph, laden with a cargo of fish, was proceeding on a voyage to New-York, and when near Nantucket Shoals the steamship Western Metropolis ran into and afoul of the said schooner, striking her on the starboard side, thereby causing her to sink almost instantly, and killing several of her crew. That at the time of the collision the said schooner had a competent lookout stationed in a proper place, and everything done on board of said schooner to avoid the collision. That said collision was caused by no want of care or skill on the part of said schooner. That the said steamship was not properly navigated, and had no proper lookout, and did not follow the usual and proper tack for steamers in that locality; and also improperly changed her course and ran towards and into said schooner in a most careless manner, and the collision was caused wholly by the fault and mismanagement of those on board said steamer.

The amount claimed for the loss of the schooner and her cargo is $22,298, with interest. The answer avers that the steamer was properly manned, tackled and appareled with proper lights and lookouts; that the collision was caused by the fault of those on board the schooner, who improperly navigated said schooner; that the steamer was stopped and backed, and every exertion made to avoid the collision. Witnesses were examined on both sides, and the cause partially summed up by counsel for both parties.

UNITED STATES COURT—EASTERN DISTRICT.

Before Judge Benedict.

THE TRIAL OF ALLEN AND ENRIGHT.

Ex-Deputy Collector (of Callicott) John S. Allen, and ex-officer Richard C. Enright, were arraigned before the Court and a jury. Mr. E. L. Sanderson, counsel for Allen, responded by saying that the documents were voluminous, that they referred to matters affecting the character and credit of the accused, and as he had not time to examine them, he asked for time to plead.

District Attorney Tracy, announced that it was his determination to try the case on Thursday, and the accused might plead during the interval. After some discussion between counsel, the Court decided that both the accused who had been arraigned, plead then; whereupon they both answered "Not guilty." The case was then set down for to-morrow, and the bail fixed at $10,000 each, Mr. Cassidy being surety for Enright and Hon. William Wall for Allen.

UNITED STATES COMMISSIONERS' OFFICE

Before Commissioner Osborn.

SARAH BURNS AGAIN.

United States vs. Sarah Burns.—The defendant is about fifty years age, and the mother of seven children. Some months since she was brought before a Commissioner on a charge of passing counterfeit money and discharged for want of sufficient evidence. Within a few days she was brought up on a similar charge, and gave $300 bail to appear for examination, and now, pending the examination in this last case, she is again brought up charged with passing a $10 counterfeit note on P. Harrington, an uptown grocer, in payment for 25 cents worth of groceries. She was committed to jail on this last charge in default of $2,000 bail.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS—APRIL 21.

Before Judge Sutherland.

PROCEEDINGS TO DECLARE AN AGED AND WEALTHY GENTLEMAN A LUNATIC—A SINGULAR CASE.

In the matter of James D. Stout, a supposed lunatic and of unsound mind, and incapable of conducting his own affairs.—In October last application was made to the Supreme Court for a writ de Lunatico Inquirendo in the case of James D. Stout, a wealthy gentleman of this City. The writ to inquire into his lunacy was granted, and three of our respectable citizens, to wit: David Hawley, Cyrus Curtis and Thaddeus M. Halstead, were appointed. The petition asking for the writ of lunacy was made by Wm. C. Stout, a son of the alleged lunatic. It is dated Oct. 15, 1867, and sets forth that James D. Stout is in his 85th year, and is the father of the petitioner; that at that time, and for the two months prior, he had been a lunatic, and altogether unfit to govern himself or to manage his affairs; that Stout is possessed of valuable real and personal estate of the value of $100,000 and upward, and that by reason of his lunacy, &c., his property is becoming wasted and destroyed. A Commission was therefore prayed. Proceedings were taken under this by the Commissioners. The following fourteen jurors were summoned, and attended from time, until the 13th of March last, when the case was finally submitted. Afterwards the jurors made known their verdict, which was to the effect that James D. Stout was not a lunatic in any sense, but was, on the contrary, of sound mind, and entirely able to manage his own affairs. The petitioner, and those interested with him, immediately took steps to set aside the verdict of the jury. They obtained a second lunacy writ, and meantime obtained an injunction to restrain Mr. Stout from parting with his property, &c., until the proper inquiry as to his soundness of mind can be made. One of the motions made to-day was to dissolve the injunction—the moving party contending that everything on the former inquisition was regular and legal; that the well-known respectability of the gentlemen engaged forbade any suspicion of corruption.

We give the jurors' names here so that our readers may understand what follows. They are: James M. Miller, Abram H. Cardozo, John D. Secor, James S. Davis, Benjamin C. Paddock, Henry Bennett, Geo. W. Smith, Rosewell G. Rolston, John L. Carbrey, George Pryer, Henry H. Keeler, Chas. G. Landors, Samuel J. Harriot, Mahlon Buckman.

On the other side, Mr. Williams read the affidavits of Robert S. Hone, President of the Republic Fire Insurance Company, and Duncan F. Curry, Secretary of the same company, to the effect that the lot on which their building stands was leased from James D. Stout, at an annual rent of $4,400, payable quarterly; that on the 1st of February, 1868, there was due for rent of the premises the sum of $2,200, being for two quarters' rent; that the company were prevented from paying rent by reason of notice and papers served in October, 1867, in proceedings instituted as to the lunacy of James D. Stout. That on the 24th of March last A. H. Cardozo called at their office, and presented a power of attorney signed by James D. Stout, authorizing said Cardozo to receive the rent due, and that on the 25th of March deponents were served with papers in these proceedings.

Mr. Sharp, Cashier of the Merchants' National Bank of New-York, deposed that on the 25th March, A. H. Cardozo called at the bank with a power of attorney from James D. Stout, authorizing Cardozo to draw all moneys in the bank standing to the credit of said Stout; deponent declined to pay the money so requested, and in five minutes after he was served with papers in the lunacy proceedings. Afterward, and on the same day, Cardozo returned to the bank with the power of attorney completed, and asked to be permitted to draw the money; deponent then informed Cardozo the money could not be paid because papers had been served in the lunacy proceedings.

Wm. C. Stout deposed that he was the petitioner in certain proceedings in regard to the alleged lunacy of James D. Stout, commenced in October, 1867, in which David Hawley and others were Commissioners, and while attending one of the meetings of the Commission on the evening of Jan. 7, James M. Miller, the foreman of the jury, came to deponent and said, "Have you got $1,500 for me?" Deponent replied he would see about it. At a subsequent meeting of the Commission the same James M. Miller came again to deponent and demanded $1,500, when deponent asked Miller what the money was for. Miller replied he "wanted $1,500." Deponent said he would see his counsel, to which Miller replied "Counsel has got nothing to do with it." That deponent afterward consulted his counsel and was advised not to pay said amount to James M. Miller, as the demand was unfounded, and no such charges or demands were allowed by statute.

The affidavits of Tappan C. Kilbourne, Susan J. Melvin, Mary Wallace, James J. A. Bruce, John M. Hall, a Marshal of the City, and others, were read, tending to show the lunacy of the said Stout. Jas. J. A. Bruce is a son-in-law of Stout. He deposed that for several years he has managed the business of Mr. Stout, and at the request of the other members of the family of said Stout, who, with the exception of William, the petitioner, in these proceedings, are females, this deponent was induced to take an active part as the representative of said females in the proceedings in lunacy, which were instituted in October last; that in consequence of deponent's position as a principal actor, the foreman of the jury on the Commission, one James M. Miller, came to deponent on the 18th of December, while in the Court-room No. 20 in the old City Hall, and said he (Miller) wished this deponent to lodge a sum of money in his (Miller's) hands to pay the costs of said jury; and the said Miller told deponent it would be best for him to do so, that it would have a good effect; that at the next meeting he would tell this deponent how much money he required. On Friday, Dec. 20, being the next meeting of the Commission, the said Miller took deponent aside in the said Court-room and told deponent that he wished the sum of $1,500, and requested deponent to bring to him, Miller, that amount or a check for the same to No. 28 Pine-street, where said Miller had his office. By the advice of counsel, deponent did not go to said Miller's office, nor did he pay him, Miller, the sum of $1,500 thus demanded, or any other sum, but when questioned by Miller at the next meeting of the Commission as to whether he had brought the money, as requested, deponent told Miller that his (deponent's) counsel had said it was a most unusual course, and had advised deponent not to pay the sum demanded, but to refer said Miller to the counsel in the case. On this statement being made to him, Miller seemed quite angry, and said that counsel had nothing to do with this matter; that it was between us, and as deponent is informed and believes, the said James M. Miller spoke to Wm. C. Stout, who was the petitioner in said suit, making a demand of $1,500 from him. On consultation with counsel it was decided to offer to said Miller, the foreman of the jury, security for all jury fees that might be incurred in the proceedings. That A. V. Stout, President of the Shoe and Leather Bank, who is a man of means, was procured as such security, and said A. V. Stout informed Miller that he, Stout, would be such security, but that the said Miller regarded the proposal with great indignation, as deponent is informed and believes. Deponent says on information and belief, that another of the jurors, one James S. Davis, was on familiar relations with Frank, the son of Mrs. Marrietta Fuller, the woman in the petition in these proceedings mentioned, &c.

The second petition is made by the person who made the first. He sets forth the facts substantially the same, and in addition cites the proceedings taken before the Commissioners, David Hawley, Cyrus Curtis and Thaddeus M. Halstead, duly appointed by the Court, directing them to inquire whether James D. Stout was a lunatic or of unsound mind. That such proceedings were had, that a jury was empanneled and proofs were taken, but by reason of irregularities in the proceedings and for other reasons, the said proceedings were a mistrial and wholly void in law as the petitioner is advised. That since the issuing of the said Commission, the said James D. Stout has exhibited still more alarming symptoms of lunacy. Then comes the affidavits of James J. A. Bruce, J. D. Tilden Brown, M. D., and others, as to the condition of Mr. Stout mentally.

Then follows a further affidavit of Mr. Bruce, in which he deposes that on the 19th of March, 1868, Mr. Stout executed a deed of conveyance of a house and lot on Eighty-first-street, the cash value of which is $10,000, to James M. Miller, the foreman of the said jury, and one Price, who gave testimony on the part of Stout before the jury; that in the deed the consideration is stated as $4,500, and that the same purports to have been acknowledged before one John F. Gray, who acted as attorney for said Stout upon the execution of the lunacy writ. Deponent further says that Mr. Cook, the attorney for the petitioner, received a note from Gray, dated March 18, 1868, as follows:

> MY DEAR SIR: Will you please inform me how you learned that the jury in the Stout matter had disagreed? I called on Col. Miller for the purpose of ascertaining what conclusion, if any, the jury had come to, but he peremptorily refused to give me any information whatever upon the subject. He says that the result will not be disclosed until the fees are paid. * * * * *

Deponent further says that as yet no verdict, as he is informed and believes, has been rendered in the proceedings, and that no adjournment of the proceedings has been had, and that the same has been permitted to fall to the ground, having been of no effect whatever.

Geo. W. Cook, the attorney for the petitioner, deposed that there were 18 jurors serving upon the panel before the Commissioners; that during their proceedings they gradually fell off until there were only 14 members who attended all the sittings; that on the evening of the 13th of March last when the jury retired to consider their verdict there were only 14 present. That the jurors were left alone—the Commissioners having given them no direction to bring in a sealed verdict; that they retired at about 11 o'clock and reported at 12; two of the Commissioners were present to receive the verdict, and notwithstanding that jury the dispersed, saying they had made a sealed verdict, and that since that time there has been no meeting of the jurors or Commissioners; deponent also says that the sum of $3,715 was demanded by said Miller as the condition of delivering the pretended verdict to Mr. Gray, the attorney for James D. Stout.

An order was, however, made at the Special term of the Supreme Court, on the 23d of March last, by Judge Barnard, in which the proceedings are recited and the verdict of the jury declaring that James D. Stout is perfectly sane and capable of managing his own affairs, and the order concludes by confirming the findings of the jury.

After considerable argument to-day by Mr. Smith and Mr. Williams, the Court took the papers. Decision reserved.

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM—APRIL 21.

Before Judge McCunn.

SALES AT AUCTION—IMPORTANT TO DEALERS IN REAL ESTATE.

Lewis T. Levy vs Sylvester Brush.—The plaintiff obtained a preliminary injunction from Justice Robinson enjoining defendant from taking title in his individual name or assigning his bid at an auction sale of real estate, upon the ground that the parties to the action had by agreement made a joint purchase of three lots for $57,000, and that the purchase being advantageous, the defendant was attempting to repudiate the agreement. On the complaint a motion was made to vacate the injunction, upon the ground that the remedy at law was sufficient without the aid of equity. This application was denied, and then on the pleadings the application was renewed. On a subsequent day the Court modified the injunction so as to permit the defendant to take title and hold the same as trustee, to abide the equity of the case, and granted a reference to Roger A. Pryor, Esq., to take testimony as to the facts and report; the defendant to apply to the Court as he may be advised on the coming in of the report, and the costs of reference to abide the event.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS—SPECIAL TERM.

EFFECT OF THE BANKRUPT LAW UPON THE SUIT OF A JUDGMENT CREDITOR COMMENCED BEFORE ITS PASSAGE—IMPORTANT DECISION BY JUDGE BARRETT.

Alexander T. Stewart vs. Siegfred Isidor et al. Barrett, J.—In the case of Goodwin vs. Sharkey, decided on the 17th inst., I held that property which had been conveyed by a bankrupt in fraud of his creditors prior to the passage of the Bankrupt law, became vested in the assignee in bankruptcy by the force of that act and by virtue of the proceedings thereunder. The question now arises as to the effect of these proceedings upon a judgment creditor's suit, commenced before the passage of the act, for the purpose of setting aside conveyances alleged to be fraudulent and of reaching the property transferred thereby. The facts are these: On the 20th of September, 1866, the plaintiffs recovered a judgment in the Superior Court of this City against the defendants, Siegfried Isidor and Julius Blumenthal, for the sum of $730 42. Shortly prior thereto these defendants made an assignment of their property to the defendant, Moritz Isidor. Execution having been issued upon that judgment and returned unsatisfied, this suit was commenced on the 30th of October, 1866. The complaint charges fraud in the making of the assignment, and seeks to set it aside and obtain the application of the property so conveyed to the payment of the judgment. Issue was joined, and the cause has since remained untried upon the equity calendar of this court. On the 10th day of February, 1868, the judgment debtors, Siegfried Isidor and Blumenthal, obtained their discharge in bankruptcy from the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New-York; and it appears that in the proceedings which resulted in that discharge the plaintiffs appeared, proved their claim and opposed the discharge. It does not appear whether the plaintiffs, in proving their debt, referred to the present suit or to the lien which they claim to have acquired thereby. A motion is now made for leave to file a supplemental answer setting up these facts, and it is resisted solely upon the ground that the discharges in bankruptcy are no bar to the present action. The discussion having been solely upon the merits of the proposed defence, it is proper that the effect of the discharges should now be considered.

The weight of authority in this State would seem, upon a casual examination, to favor the position that the mere commencement of an action in the nature of a creditor's bill gives to the creditor an equitable lien upon the property and things in action of the debtor, whether in his hands or in the hands of a fraudulent transferee. (Storm vs. Waddell, 2 Sand, Ch. 494, where the numerous cases are cited and fully discussed; The Insurance Company vs. Power, 3 Paige, 365; Roberts vs. The Albany and W. S. Railroad Company, 25 Barb., 662; Macy vs. Jordan, 2 Denio, 570; Field vs. Sands, 8 Bosw., 685.) The rule would, in my judgment, be more satisfactory if confined to cases where the disposition of the property sought to be reached had been restrained by injunction or where the property itself had been placed in the hands of a receiver pending the suit. Indeed, it was suggested in Storm vs. Waddell, above cited, that "in regard to chattels subject to execution the lien may depend upon the receivership," but in respect to equitable interests and things in action it was distinctly held that the lien was acquired by the mere commencement of the suit. The rule is not elsewhere so broadly stated; and I think that its application to strict creditors' bills, where upon filing the bill an injunction was taken out and served with the subpœna to answer, is all that is fairly deducible from a careful examination of the other cases cited. Where the action is simply to set aside an alleged fraudulent transfer, the lien, in the absence of any restraint by injunction upon the fraudulent transferee, must be purely theoretical. As a fact, it is dependent upon success in the action. Considering, then, that a lien charges the specific property, and follows it into the hands of whomsoever it may come, it is apparent that the effect of extending the rule to the mere commencement of such an action, without any accompanying act, either placing the property in the custody of the law or staying its disposition, would be disastrous to the rights of innocent third persons. It would be more reasonable in such cases to limit the creditor to an equitable right to priority in case of success, when, with the judgment setting aside the transfer, the lien would naturally and properly attach. Then the remedy in case of a disposition of the property prior to the acquisition of the lien—that is, prior to the decree—would be against the wrongful disposer, and not against the property itself, and thus third parties as well as the creditor would be protected. This question as to the existence of a lien becomes important in view of the provisions of the Bankrupt law preserving intact all liens existing in good faith upon the property of the bankrupt. It was held under the Bankrupt act of 1841, that where a lien had been acquired by the proceedings in a creditors' suit, that lien was not impaired by the discharge and personal exoneration of the bankrupt, but that the suit might proceed in rem, against the property and things in action which were the subject of the lien. (Lowery vs. Morrison, 11 Paige 327; Matter of Allen, 5 Law Rep. 362, and cases above cited.) But the plaintiff's difficulty here is two-fold. Not only is the existence of a lien within the meaning of the Bankrupt law exceedingly doubtful, but there is also a grave question as to whether the lien, assuming it to have existed, was not waived by the proving of the debt in the Court of Bankruptcy. In Hexton vs. Corse, 2 Barb. Chan. Rep. 531, 532, the Chancellor (affirming the Vice-Chancellor in 4 Edward Chan. R. 585) held that the complainants by going into the Bankrupt Court subsequent to the filing of their creditors' bill, and there proving their debt and opposing the bankrupt discharge, had abandoned the lien acquired by their proceedings in Chancery; that the retention of the lien under such circumstances was utterly inconsistent with the intent and meaning of the Bankrupt act, and that by the mere proving of the debt the creditors' bill was absolutely relinquished, surrendered and discontinued. This was a construction of provisions very similar to those contained in the present Bankrupt law. The rule is the same in England; and under the Bankrupt act of that country, where parties have proved their debts upon the footing of holding no security, they have been repeatedly ordered to deliver up to the assignee in bankruptcy the property on which they had a lien. (4 Younge & Collyer, 119; Ex parte Solomon, 1 Glyn & Jam. p 25; Ex parte Spottiswood, 1 Fonb 20; Ex parte Hornby Buck, B.C. 351; Ex parte Downes, 1 Rose 96; Ex parte Eggington Montague, R. 72.) Our present Bankrupt law, section 20, permits the creditor to prove his debt for the balance which may remain after deducting the value of the property held by him as security, to be ascertained by agreement between him and the assignee, or by a sale under the direction of the Court; but it is quite clear that, if the creditor prove his full claim without reference to his lien or security, and without apprising the Bankrupt Court of its existence, such an act would be a waiver of the lien and a relinquishment of the security to the assignee. Otherwise the creditor, besides realizing on the collateral, might receive a dividend upon his entire debt, and thus reduce the dividend to which the other creditors would be entitled in case his debt had been placed upon a proper footing. If the plaintiffs in the present case proved their full debt without disclosing or referring to the lien which is claimed to have resulted from the commencement of this suit, then, under section 21, that lien is gone, and this suit is relinquished, discontinued and discharged; and even if these proceedings were disclosed, the question is still so serious that the right to interpose the supplemental answer is unquestionable.

The motion must be granted, with leave to plaintiffs to discontinue without costs.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

Before Recorder Hackett.

There was a short calendar of cases tried yesterday in the Court of General Sessions, but owing to the large amount of testimony offered in each instance the time occupied was unusually long, the sitting continuing until nearly 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

The trial of Edgar S. Allien, for false pretences—commenced on Monday afternoon—was resumed yesterday morning. It was erroneously stated in our report in yesterday's TIMES that the prisoner was accused of procuring a loan of $4,000 in gold upon 1,300 gallons of brandy, which he falsely represented to be the property of Mr. S. G. Caruthers, for whom, he also falsely represented, he was the authorized agent. The truth of the matter, as developed by a most thorough and exhaustive inquiry, was that Mr. Allien, who is a young gentleman of irreproachable character, and the son of a well-known and highly respected New-York merchant, acted without criminal knowledge, and merely as the broker of other parties in the sale of the brandy, receiving the money therefor and passing it to his principals, less the usual brokerage charges. When the delivery of the liquor was called for it was found to have been seized, meanwhile, by the Government, for non-payment of duties, and, believing themselves to have been swindled, the purchasers caused the arrest of the only party known by them in the transaction, the innocent broker.

Counsel for the accused believed their client's innocence to have been so clearly shown that they did not deem it necessary to sum up on his behalf, relying solely upon the testimony for acquittal. Mr. Bedford, the Assistant District-Attorney, did not think that the matter called for a speech from him on behalf of the people, and hence made none. Recorder HACKETT charged the jury briefly, and immediately thereafter a unanimous verdict of "Not guilty" was rendered, and Mr. Allien was honorably discharged.

Adelaide Wevir, alias Mary Lee, alias Mrs. Morris, was arraigned at the bar for trial. The prisoner is the female who has been in the practice of taking rooms at boarding-houses, and then decamping, after a short stay, with what articles she could lay her hands on. There were several complaints against her. She pleaded guilty to an indictment for stealing silver spoons, watch, and clothing, to the value of $217, from Mrs. Catharine Neuschaffer, No. 219 East Thirty-first-street. The Court sentenced her to the State Prison for five years. In her examination she stated she was fifty-two years of age, was born in New-Jersey, and a dress maker by trade. She had already served one term in State Prison for a like offence.

George Howard, 19 years old, a printer by trade, pleaded guilty of burglariously entering the sleeping room of Nora Deady, No. 3 Catharine-slip, and stealing a dress and a cloak, valued at $8. He was sentenced to the State Prison two years and six months.

Richard Reilly, a young man 20 years of age, was placed on trial for robbery in the first degree, in assaulting Levi Palmer, of No. 69 Madison-street, while he was walking through James-street, on the night of the 5th inst. He knocked him down and snatched his watch and chain, value of $30, and ran into a house; he was pursued by an officer, and upon his arrest was identified by Mr. Palmer. The jury convicted the prisoner, and he was sentenced to the State Prison for five years.

Wm. Roche, an operator in the Franklin Telegraph Company's office, in Wall-street, was arraigned, and pleaded "not guilty" of divulging the contents of a private message, which passed through his hands, to an outside party. He was remanded for trial.

The matter of Mr. George A. Mott, the well-known attorney-at-law, who was forbidden to practice in the Court of General Sessions, until he should have cleared up a charge that he was once convicted of false pretences, in a Brooklyn criminal court, has been settled to the satisfaction of all parties. Mr. Mott showed to Recorder Hackett, by documentary testimony of the highest order, that the conviction against him was unjust, and that, in consequence of that fact, the District-Attorney of Kings County had entered a nol. pros. in the case, and also ordered Mr. Mott's honorable discharge from custody. The restraint is therefore removed, and Mr. Mott is at liberty to practice in the court as heretofore.

The Court adjourned to meet again at 11 o'clock this morning.

TUESDAY, April 21—P. M.

There was a fair supply of Money to the Brokers, to-day, at 7 ℔ cent. interest on all classes of Stock collateral, with proper margins. The tendency of the market is to a gradual, rather than a sudden return to ease. Cheaper rates than 7 ℔ cent. are scarcely to be looked for a month or six weeks to come, unless on the Public Funds after the payment of the May Interest on the 5-20s, which will let loose about $16,000,000 in Gold to the Domestic and $11,000,000 to the Foreign holders of the Public Funds. The Gold Room is inclined to advance, in sympathy with the full rates demanded for Bills on London, which are quoted at 110@110¼ ℔ cent., standard Bankers. The Cash Gold is carried at nominal rates of interest, the highest to-day being 3@5 ℔ cent. ℔ annum. The sales were at 138⅞@139@139¼@139⅛@139¼ ℔ cent.

The Public Funds advanced to 112@112⅛ ℔ cent. for the old 5-20s of 1862, and 102⅜ for the 5 ℔ cent. 10-40s. The other descriptions of the Gold-bearing Stocks were firm, and 7.30 ℔ cent. Treasury Notes, convertible into 5-20s of 1867, were in request at 106⅜ ℔ cent. and accumulated interest.

In the Railway market on the Stock Exchange the excitement of Monday Afternoon, in New-York Central and Erie, was renewed early in the day, and the fluctuations in the prices of these two Stocks continued through all the Boards and in the Long Room. Before the Boards met at 10 and 10:30 A. M., the sales of Central ran up to 120¼, and of Erie to 70⅝ ℔ cent., from which points there was a reaction down to 117⅞ and 68⅞ ℔ cent., succeeded by another upward turn to 118⅞@119¼ and 69⅛@69⅞ ℔ cent. Various rumors were current as to the causes and bearing of the sudden conclusion in the Assembly, at Albany, yesterday forenoon, on what is known as the Erie Bill. The friends of the Jersey City fugitives affected to believe that one of their number, Mr. JAY GOULD, who engineered the Bill at Albany, had obtained a great success over Mr. VANDERBILT, though it is not pretended that the Bill, as passed, is all that they set out to accomplish. On the other hand there is a significant silence, and quite an air of satisfaction manifested on the part of the friends of Mr. VANDERBILT, which is construed to mean that "the sturdy Commodore" neither suffered himself to be black-mailed in order to defeat the Bill, nor to be alarmed at its interference with the legal rights of the Stockholders, of whom he is, by far, the heaviest. The Western Roads and Hudson River were again very firm, and speculation in them on the increase as well by the returning ease in the money market and the increasing and profitable traffic of the Roads, as by the decided advance since last week, and the confident speculation in New-York Central and Erie. The Miscellaneous Shares are also firm and fairly active, and the State Bonds higher than yesterday on new Tennessees. The general business of the day at all the Boards and in the Long Room was active, and the signs are of a spirited speculation for the remainder of the present month and through the months of May and June.

At the late Boards the Express shares made a further advance, and the Adams Company in demand at 65⅛@66@67 ℔ cent., and Merchants' Union at 33⅛ ℔ cent. New-York Central was also active at 119¼@119⅛@119¼@118⅞ ℔ cent., and the St. Paul Preferred advanced to 74⅞ ℔ cent. After the Boards broke up, the following quotations were made, as compared with Monday night. The Railways were generally lower.

CONGRESS.

The Senate was not in session yesterday.

In the House the resolution providing for lighting the hall by electricity was agreed to, and the Capitol Extension Committee directed to cause the necessary changes to be made at a cost not exceeding $6,600. Mr. Robinson offered his resolutions providing that all action taken by the House for the impeachment of the President be rescinded, and the Managers called from further proceedings. The House refused, by a vote of 18 to 91, to consider the resolutions. Mr. Phelps asked for the appointment of a select committee to inquire into the truth of the statement that Gen. Sherman had been examined before the Impeachment Managers, and that in consequence of the testimony given by him the Managers had refused to put him on the stand in the impeachment trial. Objection was made, and the Speaker ruled that as it was not a privileged question it could not be considered. A resolution was adopted instructing the Post-office Committee to inquire into the expediency of securing to the government the control of all telegraph lines. The same committee was directed to inquire into the expediency of extending the franking privilege to the representatives of such foreign governments as extend like courtesies to our representatives. The Committee on Naval Affairs reported several bills relative to the Navy, among them one reducing the Marine Corps one half, which, after debate, was passed. Several Executive communications were presented and referred. The House then proceeded to the consideration of the bill reported by Mr. Jenckes to amend the Bankrupt act. Several amendments were offered, but Mr. Jenckes refused to receive them. After debate the previous question was recorded, and the bill passed yeas 75, nays 44. The text of the bill is given in our regular report of Congressional proceedings. The House then adjourned.

D., has given notice to the Standing Committee of the Diocese of Vermont of his acceptance of the Episcopate to which he was elected by the Special Convention holden in Burlington on the 11th of March. In the case of Gen. Cole, on trial at Albany, for the murder of Hon. L. Harris Hiscock, at Stanwix Hall, in that city, last Winter, objections were made yesterday by the defence to the jury panel. Several hours were spent in examining and rejecting jurors, and at the close of the day's session, five only had been sworn in. One hundred more names are to be presented by the Sheriff to-day.

Judge A. N. Ogden, formerly of the Supreme Court of Louisiana, was murderously assaulted by a negro, on Wednesday evening last, as he was going from the Carrollton cars to his residence in Greenville. The negro, coming up to him, said, "I hear you have been running down the carpet-baggers," and immediately struck him a severe blow upon the head with a club. The Judge shouted for assistance, and threw up his right arm to ward off another terrible blow which was aimed at his head, and which laid bare his arm to the bone from elbow to wrist, crushing his hand and felling him to the earth. The negro struck him several other blows upon the head, producing severe contusions and laying open the scalp to to the bone. H. N. Ogden, Esq., hearing his father's cry for help, rushed out from the house, but not until after the villain had fled, and found his father lying senseless on the ground.

Hon. Chauncey Jerome of New-Haven, whose clocks have made his name known world-wide, died on Monday, after a brief illness, in the 76th year of his age. An interesting case was before the Supreme Court yesterday, concerning the alleged lunacy of an aged and wealthy citizen named James D. Stout. Proceedings were taken some months ago. A Commission was appointed by the Court, and a jury was empanneled, who, after several sittings, found the man sane. It is now contended that the proceedings were all irregular and void. The amount of property involved is over $100,000.

The Freight engagements were more extensive.

The Vote of the Senate.

As there is so much said about the "tremendous pressure" that is brought to bear upon the Senate in the matter of impeachment,—and as we constantly hear of Senators being threatened with political ruin and personal disgrace if they vote according to their convictions,—and as Thad. Stevens is not the only man who has dared any member to vote for acquittal,—why should not the Senate put a stop to all this pressure and these menaces, and save itself from the disgraceful imputations constantly made against its members, by adopting the simple expedient of voting, at the conclusion of the proceedings, by secret ballot?

It seems that there are a dozen members, if not more, whose votes are considered doubtful. It cannot be foretold, with perfect certainty, how they will vote when the trial ends, and after they have heard all the evidence and the arguments. Some of these are very Radical in their political views, as may be seen when we mention that Senator Grimes is put down as one of them. Others are less Radical, and still others are said to be slightly tinged with "Conservatism."

If half that is reported be even half true, the "pressure" upon these Senators is enough to crush every semblance of manhood and independence out of them. Is it not shameful that they should be subjected to these sufferings, without any means of escape?

It may be said that if Senators were to vote by ballot in such a way that their votes would be unknown, and if they could thus be freed from all outside pressure and future punishment, the acquittal of the accused would be quite certain. We know that this is the first thought that suggests itself to most people on mention of the proposition, and it would in itself be sufficient to produce great opposition to a method that made such a result probable. But is it a perfectly sound and conclusive reason against it?

Senator Sumner says that all he desires in the trial is justice, and he only wishes Senators to vote justly in accordance with their conscientious convictions. He does not desire that any Senator should violate his conscience, or vote from unworthy motives. Doubtless, therefore, he feels unhappy that such heavy pressure should be brought to bear upon those of his fellow-members who have weaker consciences than himself. Such a man, who is unsuspected himself, and the direction of whose vote no one has ever doubted, is just the person to introduce a proposition that would permit every Senator to act independently, honorably and conscientiously, through the ballot.

Banks' Buncombe.

We trust that Mr. Banks is satisfied. Having indulged a constitutional fondness for oratorical thunder and lightning, having emptied the vials of his wrath upon the foreign Governments that will not take counsel of their fears, and having, as the grand result of protracted effort, carried his bill through the House—he ought to feel relieved, if not happy. He has the pleasant consciousness, we doubt not, of having achieved a triumph which supersedes diplomacy, and is expected to make Congress sole author and interpreter of the laws of nations.

But if Mr. Banks imagines that he has settled a vexed question, we take leave to say he will find himself mistaken. Or if he supposes that he is the patentee of an invention that will compel foreign Governments to obey the behests of the wise men of Washington, we respectfully refer him to King Theodorus, who may more correctly indicate the whereabout of the original discoverer. Unless we have misread history, the device by which Mr. Banks proposes to bring other Powers to their senses dates back to savagery. He tries to gild and modernize it by terming it a sign of advanced civilization; but no amount of speech-making can hide the fact that the seizure of foreigners, with whose Governments the United States have a difference arising out of their laws on the subject of citizenship, and the detention of these foreigners as hostages, is the introduction of a barbarous usage, to which Abyssinia and Ashantee have a stronger title. Civilized nations invite foreigners by affording the amplest protection to their persons and pursuits. So large an amount of foreign commerce is necessarily conducted by foreigners, that no enlightened people or ruler now fails to afford them guarantees of adequate protection under the law. To all considerations of this character, Mr. Banks is indifferent. He knows that the rights of American citizens are not adequately protected in Great Britain, and he proposes to insure for them more respect by appropriating the policy of an African chieftain, and empowering the President to take and hold British subjects who may be caught in this country, pending the adjustment of the difficulty. We repeat, this is a stroke of savagery, not a sign of civilization. It is a crude contrivance of demagogism, and one which the Senate cannot sustain without forfeiting its pretensions to statesmanship.

So exceedingly anxious is Mr. Banks to justify a proceeding which, even as a war measure, would not be defensible, that he disdains to verify the alleged facts on which he rests his case. The hypothesis essential to his argument is that the British Government obstinately refuses to entertain the question. Unless that Government persists in inflicting injustice in spite of remonstrance, and in rejecting overtures for the revision of its laws in regard to expatriation, the pugnacious periods of the Massachusetts politician are worthless as wind. His position is, that because Britain will neither legislate nor negotiate, we shall be warranted in looking up her subjects. This point he presses again and again. "England has traditions on this question which she has maintained for six hundred years. No Administration has ever yielded them," he adds, and none will until this country enters upon a system of reprisals. Mr. Banks could not intend to misstate the case, but nevertheless he has misstated it. England has thrown overboard the traditions which he declares she cherishes. If he will take the trouble to refer to the recent debate in the House of Commons, on the motion of Mr. Forster, he will find that Lord Stanley, on behalf of the Government, joined the Liberals in explicitly repudiating the old doctrine as absurd and impracticable. On all sides, the traditions which Mr. Banks emphasizes were discarded. Equally inaccurate is his statement touching the intentions of the British Government. It will make no approach toward a settlement, he says, save under compulsion. But what is the truth? During the Parliamentary debate to which we have alluded, Mr. Forster suggested the appointment of a mixed commission, and the Foreign Secretary at once expressed his approval of the suggestion. As the case stands, therefore, the circumstances on which Mr. Banks predicates his adaptation of the Theodorus policy are non-existent. What he gravely treats as facts turn out to be sheer fiction. And the very Government which he proposes to frighten into concessions has actually shown itself more ready to promote a friendly settlement of the question at issue than Congress itself.

As an attempt to secure the rights of American citizens abroad, the Banks bill amounts to nothing. It may excite some merriment and some disgust; it may remind the country how scanty are the sense and statesmanship which regulate Congressional action; but it will in no degree advance the practical solution of the difficulty which the fifty-eight members who voted for the bill profess to desire. That result can be reached only by direct and courteous communication with the Government whose policy we are anxious to influence. Mr. Seward and the British Minister at Washington, or Lord Stanley and the American Minister at London, must take the initiative. A mixed commission, or some similar agency, will be requisite to define the application of principles, and to determine the details of a settlement mutually acceptable to the two countries. Then, and not until then, Congress and Parliament will have their respective work to do by legalizing a settlement which, we feel assured, may easily be made efficient for the protection of the principles upheld by Americans. Meanwhile Lord Stanley is more advanced, because more practical, than Mr. Banks. And the House weakens its objections to British traditions by allowing them still to form a part of American law.

Cabinet Opinions.

The exclusion by the Senate of all testimony going to show that the President, in his action on the Tenure of Office bill, took the advice of his Cabinet and followed it, is somewhat remarkable. It is justified on the ground that it was utterly immaterial,—that the Cabinet cannot share the responsibility of the President in the slightest degree, and that their advice is of no more importance than that of any other persons.

The Constitution in terms gives the President the right to require the opinions in writing of his Secretaries. It does not, indeed, require him to be governed by them, or to surrender his own opinion, when it comes in conflict with theirs. This has been done, however, by more than one of our Presidents, and by each on more than one occasion. The President is unquestionably responsible for his official action, and that responsibility cannot, strictly speaking, be shared by his Cabinet. But it would seem to be reasonably clear that the Constitution intended, in making explicit and special provision for the written opinions of its members, to give them more of weight and importance than would belong to them as the opinions of individuals.

The President is accused of a crime,—of having done an act in violation of law, and with intent to violate both the law and Constitution of the United States. His reply, in part, is that the law which he violated was unconstitutional and therefore no law, and that he was so advised by the official "opinions" which the Constitution authorized him to demand from his Secretaries:—and that this being so, his intent could not have been criminal, nor the act one which can subject him to punishment. Whether conclusive or not, such a line of defence is certainly a perfectly proper one, and the Senate has admitted it to be so by allowing the President to make it. But the Senate refuse to admit the only evidence by which its truth could be established.

Such action seems scarcely consistent with the idea of a fair and impartial trial. It is alleged that the fact, if proved, would be immaterial. That, certainly, cannot be known until the fact is proved, because it is only then that it can be made the subject of argument and deliberation. But it is scarcely supposable that opinions, from high officials, for which the Constitution expressly provides, are of no more consequence than opinions of private persons which may be bought or volunteered, and which are not recognized by either the Constitution or the law. It would be certainly a strange spectacle to see the President convicted of a crime and deposed from office, for acting upon opinions which the Constitution expressly authorizes him to require.

The Kerosene Murders—A Request to Our Common Council.

Another woman died in this City on Monday from the effects of a kerosene lamp explosion on Saturday night.

At the time of the last explosion immediately preceding this (which was also fatal to a woman) we called upon the coroner's jury to take some notice of the cause of the death. They did so, and censured the dealer who had sold the dangerous and adulterated compound to the unwitting customer upon whose remains they were sitting. We suppose this is all we will ever hear about it.

We have a law on the statute-book upon this subject which, if enforced, would save a hundred lives and a thousand woundings, through the country every year—not to speak of millions of dollars worth of property. It was enacted by Congress in March of last year, and as it is little known and utterly disregarded in this City, we quote it for the purpose of making an attempt to secure its enforcement. It provides:

> "That no person shall mix for sale naptha and illuminating oils, or shall knowingly sell or keep for sale, or offer for sale such mixture, or shall sell or offer for sale oil made from petroleum for illuminating purposes, inflammable at less temperature or fire test than one hundred and ten degrees Fahrenheit, and any person so doing shall be held to be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof by indictment or presentment in any Court of the United States having competent jurisdiction, shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, and by imprisonment for a term of not less than six months nor more than three years."

The Providence Journal, which calls our attention to this law, says truly that it strikes at the root of the trouble — that its enforcement would make lamp-explosions and kerosene conflagrations almost unknown, and would banish the whole list of patent burning fluids that are now cursing the land, and bringing loss of life and property to so great an extent upon the people.

The enforcement of the law, however, was left by Congress to State Legislatures and municipal corporations. Without the action of one or other of these bodies, it is practically inoperative. And it is here that we would like our Common Council, which occasionally does a good thing, to pass an ordinance that will cost them nothing whatever, while it will provide an office for some capable, conscientious, scientific Democrat.

We want the immediate passage of an ordinance securing the enforcement of the above law in this City, providing for the appointment of an Inspector of Kerosene, and forbidding the sale, under heavy penalties, of any burning fluid composed in any part of the products of petroleum, unless it will stand the fire test of 110 degrees. The City of Philadelphia has already such an ordinance of the most stringent nature. The City of Providence has such an ordinance, which has been in force for over a year; and its passage, according to the Journal, has "put an end to burning-fluid explosions" in Providence, for the very good reason that kerosene that can be sold under the ordinance cannot explode in any ordinary kerosene lamp. The ordinance, adds our contemporary, is a very great and direct benefit to the insurance companies, by preventing the destruction of property by fires. If no one else will see to the passage of such an ordinance in New-York, we should think our insurance companies might attend to it.

It will be observed that the law of Congress specially refers to the mixing of naphtha with kerosene. It is this cheap, but terribly dangerous substance that is the cause of the explosions we are continually chronicling. Notwithstanding the prohibition of the law, we believe it is mixed with nearly all the kerosene sold in New-York. There would be no trouble about an inspector finding it, and no particular trouble about his stopping the murderous adulteration. All we want is that our Common Council should give us an effective ordinance and a capable agent.

MINOR TOPICS.

Our prediction that all the outcry made about the horrible disaster on the Erie Railroad would lead to no result, is already fulfilled. Nothing has been done in the Legislature, nothing is done or proposed by the directors, to prevent such occurrences in the future or to atone for the past, the newspapers have done talking about it, and the great mass of the people have forgotten it already. Only those who suffered from it in their own persons, or in the loss of friends, continue to think of it with any special feeling. We shall have another presently, and that will awaken a short-lived horror, and then die away just like this. The public are powerless in the hands of great corporations.

It seems that the two "Railroad Kings," whose contests have convulsed the State for some weeks, and converted its Legislature, courts of law, Stock Exchange and newspapers into bear gardens, have settled their disputes. They have come to an understanding by which, undoubtedly, their own interests can be protected, whatever may become of the interests of the stockholders and of the public at large. Both assented, it seems, to the passage of the bill which has been pending for some time at Albany, and in connection with which reports of bribery and corruption on the most gigantic scale have been rife. Beyond the money bagged by unscrupulous scoundrels, in and out of office, what has been gained by this fight?

The able manner in which the Tribune has recently been calling its political opponents "Liars." is being ably copied by a number of its cotemporaries in different parts of the country. The New Nation (Richmond) calls the editor of the Enquirer a "Liar and a coward." The editor of the Cotton Planter calls the editor of the Vindicator, (Montgomery, Ala.,) a "sneaking Liar,"—the latter having previously called his adversary a "thief." The Dayton Ledger (not to be outdone by the Tribune) coarsely says, "Horace Greeley is among the oldest and chiefest of political Liars." We find an unusual eruption of this disgraceful sort of language at the present time, and we are grieved to think that it should have been stimulated by the example of our City cotemporary. It is wretched work, gentlemen. It may be a sign of great talent, and intellect, and earnestness, and force; but still it is coarse, foul, disgusting work.

We fear that a great many people are getting "Kuklux on the brain." We hear of the operations of the cadaverous order everywhere. Not only in the South, from Knoxville to Galveston, but in the North, from Washington to Chicago, the Confederate ghosts are raging around,—not doing much harm, it is true, but uttering the most horrible threats. Their latest appearance is in Chicago, where (as we should judge from the Republican) their "dens" are innumerable and their ferocity inconceivable. Fe-fi-fo-fum! We are glad, however, to see the Republican is not only unawed, but defiant; and while it has the courage to speak of "that iniquitous, oath-bound, secret, political organization, Briareus-headed and Argus-eyed, born in the South of rebel intractability and violence, which has again extended its ramifications into the City of Chicago," we need have no fear that the Kuklux will get the upper hand in Chicago. It is unnecessary to say that an election is coming off in Chicago in a few days.

Mr. J. L. Everitt, whose name had been procured and used in aid of what proves to have been a bogus charitable institution,—the "Juvenile Guardian Society," publishes a card in another column, withdrawing his name and explaining how it came to be used. It is the old story—he saw other respectable names recommending the Society, and on the strength of their indorsement, gave his own. This is the way in which nine-tenths of the swindles of the day are imposed upon the public. Many men feel not only at liberty, but bound, to indorse what somebody else, whom they know and trust, has indorsed already. Every man should adopt the rule to indorse nothing of which he has not some personal knowledge;—he should be, to say the least, as careful about indorsing public projects for which public and private aid is asked, as he is about indorsing pecuniary obligations. Has not the District Attorney some duty to perform in this matter?

A short time since the Emperor Napoleon made a present of a fine bell to an educational institution in the State of Indiana. He has now made a present of the Imperial edition of his Life of Cæsar to the Lyceum Library of New-Orleans. The latter gift was meant to express the Emperor's gratitude for a number of photographs that had been sent him by the Municipal authorities of New-Orleans, among which were the photographs of the members of the Common Council. Is there not a suggestion here for the members of our New-York Common Council to send their photographs to His Majesty? We have no doubt they would be quite happy to do it. But we warn the Emperor that, on receiving them, he need not make a gift of anything in the shape of books or literature. If he has any loose change about him, it would be more acceptable.

A dispatch from Washington says that the prospects of conviction on the Impeachment trial are improving,—that "Fessenden denies the truth of the rumors about him," and that "Fowler's friends say he is sure to go with the great body of the Republicans on the final vote." The only "rumors" we have seen about Mr. Fessenden were that he would vote according to his own convictions of "impartial justice," and not on party grounds or from party dictation; and they can hardly be Mr. Fowler's "friends" who say he will vote with any party, on such a question, without regard to his own opinions.

The commander of the Fifth Military District has done perfectly right in issuing an order forbidding agents of the Freedman's Bureau to take any active part in politics, and directing the dismissal of all who violate this order. The agents of the Freedman's Bureau are supported by the Government for the performance of a particular duty in reference to the lately emancipated slaves. It is no part of that duty to teach them how to vote, or to marshal them at the polls, or to deliver harangues to them for or against one or other of the political parties. Yet some of them have busied themselves about these things to the neglect of everything else. Several of the worst of them are in New Orleans, and we imagine it is at these noisy and disturbing demagogues that Gen. Buchanan's order is specially directed.

In his recent speech at Charleston, according to the News' report, Hon. Mr. Ashley said he expected to see the day when a colored man would be elected to Congress from South Carolina, and when that should occur he intended to vote for the first black man there as Speaker of the House. Such a pledge as this indicates with a good deal of accuracy the amount of intellectual and moral statesmanship which Mr. Ashley brings to the public service. Mr. Ashley, in the same speech, said it was perfectly well known that, if any but a Southern man had been Vice-President, President Lincoln would not have been assassinated. This is not the first time that Mr. Ashley has put this very calumnious and cowardly assertion before the public.

At the opening of the Impeachment trial the Senate refused to allow a telegraphic dispatch from the Governor of Michigan, urging speedy and decisive action, to be read, on the ground that it was not a proper communication to be made to a judicial body whose action should be impartial and independent. The decision commanded general approval as just and demanded by self-respect. It is to be hoped individual Senators will feel it equally due to themselves to resist and resent the attempts made to coerce their action by political and personal appeals. It seems that there is a very zealous and powerful lobby interest at Washington doing everything in its power to overbear all scruples and compel a conviction.

Gen. Halleck (who used, about Shiloh times, to be admiringly called "Old Brains") appears to be fortifying Alaska on the most approved strategic principles, so as to be ready, on an emergency, to give a desperate resistance to any enemy who may attempt to land on those shores. He has established "two new military posts," one on Kodiac Island, called Fort Kodiac, which he garrisons with no less than nine guns of the Second Artillery, and another on the Gulf of Chugachink, to be called Fort Kenay, garrisoned by a battery of the same regiment. Chugachink will be ready for the invader. We admit that in time of peace we must prepare for war; but there seems as yet to be no serious designs meditated against Alaska,—unless haply by the Indians. And for these latter we are inclined rather to Secretary Browning's strategy, which consists (according to his recommendation to Congress) in propitiatory offerings of tobacco and breeches to the natives of the Aleutian Islands.

It would seem that our "steam man" is no more of a novelty than anything else under the sun. The English have heard of him, and at once tell us of a machine for which an English patent was taken out in the year 1813, for a locomotive "to walk or run" on legs, "having a motion similar to that of the human extremities." The subject of the invention was registered as a "method and machinery for drawing or propelling carriages on roads or railways by means of certain levers or legs acting alternately or conjointly upon such roads," &c. We are glad, however, that the English are willing to allow that the head and hat of our American steam man are novelties. As for the "principle" of the steam-man, we don't care anything about that. We never thought he had any worth talking about.

The Pall-Mall Gazette speaks of the decline of the ballet in England. In the days of Cerito and Taglioni there was something like an artistic ballet; but now it has degenerated to a matter of sensuality. "Dancing has sunk into a mere affair of half-naked posturing. Girls are engaged solely for their beauty; and their costume is of the flimsiest and scantiest, in order that that beauty, (whatever its worth,) may be liberally displayed. The managers pick up pretty girls without any qualifications beyond their good looks for two or three shillings a night. The degradation which can hardly fail to accompany a consciousness of the shameless exhibition for which they are hired, and the paltriness of their pay, combine to produce results which, considering the temptations of their position, need no demonstration." This is severe language, but the facts which are given amply justify it. In the United States, during the last year or two, we have had a rank and rapid growth of the ballet. Latterly, it has evidently reached its turning-point. In some of the smaller cities, especially, its exhibitions have been gross and demoralizing. Neither the public taste nor the public sense of decency will suffer by the disappearance of its vulgarities.

AMUSEMENTS.

The European Circus.

The gallant proprietor of the European Circus, which is exhibiting under canvas in Thirty-fourth street, near Broadway, instead of lamenting the incessant showers, jauntily announces "continued overflows" in his advertisements. We attended, yesterday, a performance in which rain was decidedly the prevailing element; but, nevertheless, the whole of the entertainments were gone through with as much energy as if the sun had been shining with all his might, instead of Aquarius letting fly with all his main upon the sopped equestrians. The "Trojan Youths", smiled through the mud kicked up into their faces by their Thessalian steeds. We sincerely trust that the week passing will see the last of the moist evenings which give such an unpleasant reality to the manager's boast of "continued overflows." The Circus will exhibit every afternoon and evening, rain or shine.

Academy of Music.

Mlle. Janauschek will appear at the Academy this evening as Medea, in the German drama of that name. The series of performances which Mlle. Janauschek thus begins, will be her final representations in this country. They will be but five in number, and the farewell is to take place on Wednesday next.

Wallack's Theatre.

Mr. Tom Taylor's drama of "Henry Dunbar" was substituted at this house last evening for Jerrold's "Rent Day"—the play advertised. The change was made necessary on account of the illness of Mr. Gilbert, and of the absence of Mr. Stoddart. Mr. Gilbert's indisposition will oblige the manager to make an alteration in the cast of "Rosedale" in Brooklyn to-night; Mr. Stoddart will take the part of Miles McKenna; Mrs. Sedley Brown appears as Rosa Leigh instead of Miss Eytinge, who cannot be spared from the cast of "The Honeymoon," which is announced at Wallack's Theatre this evening.

Musical.

AN HOUR WITH THE PIANO.

In referring yesterday to Mr. C. Jerome Hopkins' piano-forte recitation, we inadvertently said that it would take place at Steinway Hall. It should have been Dodworth's Hall, next to Grace Church, where it comes off to-day.

CONCERT.

Mr. W. J. Hill, the well-known and agreeable tenor, will give his annual concert at Irving Hall to-night. The artists are Mme. Agatha States, (who has recently made so great a success in opera,) Miss Jennie E. Bull, Miss A. Toedt, (the violinist,) Mr. Thatcher, Mr. Beckett, Mr. Crane, Mr. A. H. Pease, (pianist,) and Mr. G. W. Colby, (conductor.)

Mrs. Kemble's Reading.

Mrs. Kemble read Shakespeare's tragedy of "Henry V.," at Steinway Hall, last evening, to the satisfaction of an attentive audience. No previous reading has tested the strength of Mrs. Kemble's voice so much as the passages illustrating Henry's very hearty character in this piece. The results of the test proved Mrs. Kemble's power to be as forcible as could be desired. This afternoon at 3 Mrs. Kemble will give her first day reading of the present course.

Natural History.

Mr. Waterhouse Hawkins will commence to-night the course of lectures on natural history, which he was compelled to postpone a week ago on account of an accident to himself. He is an English gentleman, known for his devotion to natural science, and his success in arousing public attention to its study. He has already been heard here on the subject, and is thus known to our people as a very interesting and attractive lecturer. The course comprises four lectures, and is to be at the Cooper Institute. His subject to-night is "The Inhabitants of the Sea."

WASHINGTON.

Special Dispatches to the New-York Times

WASHINGTON, D. C., Tuesday, April 21.

The Senate was not in session to-day. The House met at the usual hour and proceeded with legislative business in good earnest, about 120 members being present. After various preliminary matters, including another proposition to withdraw the articles of impeachment from a Democratic member, Mr. Pike, Chairman of the Naval Committee, opened the morning hour with a budget of reports favorably and adversely, most of those reached to-day being of a private and unimportant character.

MR. BOUTWELL'S IMPEACHMENT SPEECH.

Manager Boutwell's argument is complete, and will be read to-morrow from printed slips. It makes about fifty pages document size. It is said to be very exhaustive of the subject. He reviews the evidence at length, takes up each article and the evidence to sustain it, claims that they are all proved, and demands a conviction on every count in the indictment. The argument will make about eighteen columns in the Times, and advance copies have been sent by mail.

The demand for tickets to hear Mr. Boutwell to-morrow, is unusually great; but as his speech is to be read, there will be much disappointment at the absence of his usual fervid eloquence. The confidence in a verdict of conviction is evidently increasing in quarters that have heretofore considered it doubtful. At least, the Cabinet officers have, within a few days, expressed their belief that this result is certain, and have given their confidential subordinates orders accordingly.

I have excellent reason for believing that a similar feeling is entertained in the domestic circle of the White House, and that preliminary preparations for the exodus are even now under way.

THE BANKRUPT BILL.

After a number of Executive communications were received, Mr. Jenckes took the floor in support of his amendatory Bankrupt Bill, reported yesterday. Quite an animated discussion sprang up on the proposition to extend the time for the operation of the fifty per cent. clause, Mr. Dawes and others making their usual vigorous opposition to it. The bill, as reported, deferred the operation of that clause one year from June 1, 1868, to June 1, 1869. But Mr. Jenckes finally accepted an amendment reducing the extension to seven months, viz., January 1, 1869. The bill finally passed by 31 majority, showing that its operation for one year has made many friends in Congress, as the original bill only passed by 8 majority.

THE FRANKING PRIVILEGE.

The House Committee on Postal Affairs will soon report a bill extending the franking privilege to the heads and members of the Foreign Legations in this country whose Governments grant that privilege to our Ambassadors.

MOVEMENTS OF PROMINENT GENERALS.

Gens. Sherman and Hancock dined with the President yesterday, and the former started to rejoin his command in the West this morning, with the publicly expressed hope that he would never be compelled to return to Washington again, except strictly in a military capacity. Gen. Grant has returned from his trip to New-York, and to-day resumed his duties at Army Headquarters. Gen. Schofield, Commandant of the First Military District, arrived here yesterday, and after an interview with Gen. Grant to-day, returned to Richmond this evening. Gen. Lorenzo Thomas was present at the Cabinet meeting held to-day, as usual.

THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

The new building intended for the Department of Agriculture is about completed, and will be ready for use before the middle of June.

Dispatches to the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, April 21.

THE SOUTH CAROLINA ELECTION.

Dispatches received by Gen. Grant from Gen. Canby, dated Charleston, April 20, give the following further particulars of the vote for the Constitution in South Carolina. In twenty-one districts, registering 93,000 votes, partial returns give 54,000 votes polled at the last election. The same districts, with full returns, at the last election gave 53,000 votes. Partial canvass returns from eighteen districts give 34,094 votes for the Constitution, and 11,224 against. These returns indicate that there will be a majority for the Constitution in all except three or four districts.

THE INDIAN WAR.

The following copy of a record of events from the post return of Fort Fetterman, Dakotah Territory, for March, 1868, has been sent to Gen. Grant for his information:

> "March 10.—Mail party from Fort Reno was attacked by Indians at Dry Fork of Powder River. No loss.
> March 12.—Indians captured a six-mule train three miles from the post.

> March 18.—A detachment from the saw-mill while locking logs, was attacked by Indians, killing private Thomas Bourke, of Company K, Eighteenth Infantry, and captured twenty-nine mules.
> March 20.—Horse-shoe and Twin Spring Ranges were burned by Indians, who also killed three citizens.
> March 25.—The settlers of Laboute Range were chased off by Indians."

INSTALLATION OF VIRGINIA OFFICIALS.

According to information received here this morning, the Mayor and the members of the City Councils, with other municipal officers, recently appointed by Gen. Schofield for Alexandria, Va., were installed there to-day. Only a few of the new officers are old citizens. About 30 of the old officers, who were unable to take the so-called iron-clad oath, as required by Gen. Schofield, were removed, and those who could take it, some 8 or 10 in number, were retained. All the new appointees are white.

OUR ASIATIC SQUADRON.

The Navy Department received dispatches from Rear-Admiral Rowan, dated Simons Bay, Cape of Good Hope, February 21, announcing the arrival of the United States steamer Piscataqua, Capt. Ammen commanding, at that place after a twenty days' voyage from Rio de Janeiro, her officers and crew all well. She would proceed from there to her station as flagship of the Asiatic Squadron.

NATIONAL BANKS.

The Comptroller of the Currency will publish in a few days an important circular giving a detailed statement and explanation of the items that may constitute the lawful money reserve which the National Banks of the country are required to keep by sections 31 and 32 of the National Currency act. As the officers of some of the banks do not appear to understand this subject fully, this circular is intended to correct any erroneous impressions that may have been formed.

MARINE LIGHT ESTABLISHED.

The Lighthouse Board has reëstablished the lighthouse at East Pascagola, Miss., which was destroyed early in the late war.

PUBLIC LANDS.

The Commissioner of the General Land Office has issued instructions to the land officers at Marquette, Mich., to restore to market on the 15th day of June next, the lands heretofore duly offered at public sale, and subsequently withheld from ordinary private entry for the adjustment of land grant for canal purposes. A list descriptive by legal subdivisions of the tracts accompany the instructions, and embrace nearly 400,000 acres.

JAPAN.

The Invasion of the Sacred Soil by Foreign Powers.

Full Particulars of the Brief but Decisive Campaign.

The War Between Satsuma and the Tycoon Stotsbashi.

The Landing of Foreign Troops on Japanese Soil—A Brief and Exciting Campaign—The War Between the Mikado and the Tycoon.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Hiogo, Japan, Saturday, Feb. 29, 1868.

The brief and exciting campaign on Japanese territory has terminated. The ships have again swallowed up the small army that for this short period of a week profaned the sacred soil. And the terrified inhabitants are rapidly returning, with their household goods, which during the panic they had hastily packed up and posted away to places of safety. Groups of happy Japanese again throng the streets, fantastically dressed and elated with "saki," dancing along with spasmodic step, while they toss their hands in glee and shout their unceasing "Hi-gah-nigah!"

The "Ministers resident" are holding frequent conferences with the Mikado's envoy, and debating the advantages of a diplomatic trip to Kioto itself. And rumor says that Daimio Bezen is to give up his subordinate, guilty of the recent outrage, that he may receive proper punishment at the hands of the Foreign Powers. In the absence of anything more interesting, your correspondent will chronicle a few of the particulars of the recent war.

Commander Creighton of the United States steamship Oneida; Commander English of the Iroquois; Baron Von Brandt, the Prussian Minister, and the Captain of the Her Majesty's steamship Ocean, were about crossing the Foreign concessions as Bezen's troops passed. A volley of musketry was heard. "God bless my soul," exclaimed the Baron; "I believe they are firing at us," and the whistling bullets confirmed his conclusions. The American Minister, Gen. Van Valkenburg, immediately ordered out his marine guard, and commanded them to return the fire. It was over in a few moments. Troops landed from all the men-of-war and commenced a pursuit.

A tedious tramp we had of it toward Osaka that 5th of February afternoon, with the Oneida's and Iroquois' crews and the English troops pushing on ahead, and a small howitzer toiling behind, while a number of citizens tramped after us to defend the rear and look carefully after the "loot." Up and down hill and over paddy-fields went the troops, and along roads that lead every way but the one we wished to take. But Bezen's men were swiftly shod, and toward sunset we gave them up and turned back again toward Kobe. The country presented innumerable beauties to the eye. In every direction lay spread a landscape of prettily-terraced farms, green with vegetation even in Winter, dotted here and there with groves of pine and bamboo, and here and there with clustering hamlets—a country, in the hands of a skillful foe, grand for defence even against the finest European force.

We invested the town with our combined forces, threw out a cordon of pickets and established an inner line of sentries. The accustomed sounds of busy trade were lost in the bustle and confusion of war. Every house was closed and a death-like silence prevailed within.

The Custom-house on the foreign concessions, occupied by the various Legations, became headquarters. Immediately in front of it, on the broad gravelly level of the concessions, the English sailors threw up an immense and rudely-constructed earthwork, and mounted several guns. This did not long remain unrivaled by a smaller breastwork, built by some of our own officers and men, through whose embrasure frowned a rifled howitzer from the Oneida. All the circumstances of the case justified the military occupation of the town; and it was unanimously decided by the combined ministerial powers that the lives of the foreign residents should not be endangered by passing bodies of troops until satisfaction should be obtained for this past offence, and some assurance of protection for the future.

The first night of our campaign in Japan was most romantic. The sky was clear and cloudless, the air crisp and still, and the brilliant moonbeams tipped the masts of the fantastic junks and the spars of the ghostly shipping with silver, and along the white sands of the reservation,

"Lay like a jasper column half upreared."

One by one the bivouac fires lighted up and blazed brighter and brighter on the night. And not a few who lounged within the circle of their cheery warmth, could recall many similar scenes in his own experience—an experience to which this was but child's play.

Headquarters presented an animated scene on that first evening. Above—were hurryings to and fro; closetings of Ministers; consultations of captains, and reports of subalterns. Below—the smoke and roar of burning camp-fires, profanity worse than that of the Flanders' army. There was the steaming of broiling rations, as if the night long, "it snewed in the house of mete and drink." While everywhere one stumbled over slumbering forms and stacks of burnished arms.

Orderlies came and went. Mounted aids dashed in with important news from the "lines" and dashed away again, with rattling sabre, and jingling spurs, in all the "pomp and circumstance of war." But no one thought of sleep.

At midnight came an alarm. A gun from the picket line toward Osaka. Bang! r-r-rip, r-r-rip, r-r-r-r-r-r-rattled the musketry along the line. "Turn out the guard!" yelled an officer. "Fall in, blue jackets! Right face! Double quick! Ma-a-rch!" And away they went amid crash and clatter and a dire confusion of oaths and orders.

"While thronged the citizens, with terror dumb,
Or whispered with white lips, "The foe! They come! they come!"

Away went a blazing rocket from the English Legation, fired in such trepidation that it collided with a tree and fizzled away among the branches. Another followed, flying like an arrow of fire through the moonlit sky, and bursting in a myriad of stars. A signal gun from Her Majesty's ship Ocean boomed a reply, and soon after masses of American and English sailors moved past, and disappeared beyond the distant line of woods. We strained our ears to catch the first sounds of the opening engagement, and grew weary with disappointment. One by one the citizens who had been valiantly parading before the headquarters, crept away to sleep.

I threw myself upon the matted floor, rolled in a great coat, and covered with the bits of Japanese clothing captured in the afternoon's pursuit, and was soon oblivious to the excitement of the external world.

Until the 9th of February we held the town. Then came the envoy from the Mikado, and gave assurances that the foreigners should be protected, whereupon all the troops were withdrawn, and Satsuma and Chosiu occupied the place.

The war between Satsuma and Stotsbashi, the late Tycoon, continues. It is rumored that the Mikado himself is about to emerge from the seclusion in which he has always lived, and take the field against the Tycoon. If such be the case, the Tycoon must eventually fail, but he will not yield without a struggle. And we cannot but sympathize with the man who has labored to advance his country by opening her ports to the commerce of other lands, and studied the welfare of his people in the introduction of many useful inventions from the new world. He is still at Yeddo, and has a large armed force at his disposal.

The foreign powers have issued an order assuming a position of strict neutrality.

Large numbers of Satsuma's and Chosiu's officers and soldiers are quartered in Hiogo and Kobe. They are prodigal in their demonstrations of friendliness toward foreign officers, and the avidity with which they seize on everything European is really amusing. They beg for cigars and tobacco; they frankly confess their predilections for ale and champagne, and do not even hesitate to ask for the very buttons on your coat. And if one has been so fortunate as to possess himself of a coat, or a European hat, or a pair of shoes, regardless of style, color or size, he will strut about the streets proud of his newly-acquired garments, and unconscious of the ludicrous figure he presents.

We did not forget the 22d, Washington's birthday, in this little out-the-way spot. The American and English men-of-war joined in a grand salute at noon, and in the evening the American Minister, Gen. Van Valkenburg, the officers of the United States steamers Oneida and Iroquois, and the few Americans in Kobe, celebrated the occasion by a dinner on shore.

The United States steamer Iroquois has gone to Yokohama. The names of the men wounded in the recent troubles are: Walter G. Clark, second-class apprentice boy, flesh wound in shoulder, and Michael J. Dewire, private marine. Both belong to the United States steamer Oneida, and both are under surgical treatment on that vessel, and are doing finely. The marine lost a portion of his right hand while warding off with his gun the razor-edged sword of a Yakouin.

It is rumored that the Tycoon has abdicated in favor of his cousin.

ADIENO.

Unsatisfactory Condition of Affairs—The Defeat of the Tycoon—Further Account of the Trouble Between the Foreign Powers and the Prince of Bezen.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Yokohama, Saturday, March 7, 1868.

The situation of affairs in Japan at the present time is unsatisfactory to all parties. The people at large are hesitating in a divided allegiance, while foreign residents are perplexed to know which is the real government of Japan. On the 27th of January, Stotsbashi, who had previously retired from Kioto, and it was then reported, resigned the Tycoonate, made an attempt from Osaka upon the former place some thirty-five miles distant, with the view of liberating the youthful Mikado from the hands of the Prince of Satsuma, to whom he is supposed to be an unwilling prisoner. Early in the battle the general upon whom he most trusted for ability fell in the vanguard of his forces, and through the treachery of one of his officers the fortress of Yodo, having an important position in this movement, fell into the hands of Satsuma without firing a shot.

The engagement was disastrous to the troops of Stotsbashi and they became affected with a panic and ingloriously retreated. The Tycoon himself at this unexpected turn of affairs and finding his own safety endangered, left Osaka, and was received on board the United States steamer Iroquois, whence he went to his own steam frigate Kayo Maro, then in the harbor, and in her he immediately set out for Yedo. There were other Government vessels in the harbor upon which many officers escaped. The troops dispersed in various directions, many following the sea coast down the peninsula, called by the natives Kishe, but named on the charts Gokinai. An eyewitness stated that 4,000 filed through the foreign settlement at Kobé the night and morning after the battle, on their way to Hiogo, whose muskets and field-pieces were perfectly bright and from which not a shot had been fired. At this time the officials at the Custom-house and others connected with the Yedo Government chartered a British steamer and left for Yedo. The victorious army of the Southern princes marched into Osaka and burned the Tycoon's castle there, and proceeding to Hiogo, took possession of the Custom House and reorganized it. What the nature of the last interview between Stosbashi and the foreign ministers was, before he left Osaka, has never transpired. The foreign representatives retired aboard the ships of their several nations, and soon entered into negotiations with new officials ashore.

Matters proceeded thus far quietly, though much anxiety may have been felt by foreign residents, until a rencontre, which occurred on the 4th of February.

A train of the retainers of the Prince of Bizen, one of Satsuma's allies, had been straggling through the town, on their way to Kioto, all day. About 2 o'clock the Secretary, or Karoo, of this Prince came through with an escort. At the cry of stanirio (fall down) all the natives in sight fled and hid or abased themselves to the ground. Two of the French marine guard were crossing just in front of this troop and were attacked with both spears and firearms, and, though both were wounded, both escaped by running. The guard then began indiscriminate firing upon any one whom they saw, and not a few were wounded. Sir Harry Parkes, H. B. M. Ambassador, was riding near and narrowly escaped. The assembly was sounded at the British Consulate and the Legation Guard gave chase and returned the fire. They captured a few prisoners and some arms, but the main body escaped to the hills. Marines were landed from the fleets with all available speed, and took up their quarters ashore that night. The greatest confusion and alarm prevailed, many of the merchants left their goods ashore in the insecure care of native servants and sought refuge afloat. The marines took advantage of their absence to pillage all the warehouses, and were soon perfectly uncontrollable. So that their victims might well pray, "Save me from my friends."

The foreign Ministers in retaliation for this outrage seized several steamers in the harbor of Kiogo, which were said to belong to Princes who were of this Southern party and held them, publishing at the same time a proclamation to the effect that they should require an explanation and redress. In a very short time came Embassadors in the name of the Mikado, declaring his intention to faithfully observe all conditions of treaties made with the Tycoon which office they said no longer exists.

About the same time new officials presented themselves at Nagasaki armed with the authority of the Mikado, and were obeyed by the Governors, who delivered up all which pertains to their office and retired to Yedo. It was generally rumored that new appointments have been made for Yokohama, but if true, they have never been claimed here. These Embassadors denied the culpability of any one else than the Secretary of Bizen, and stated that the Mikado had already ordered his master Matsdaira Bizennokami to punish the offender by decapitation. Upon this the steamers seized by the foreign Powers were delivered.

On the 9th of February the Pacific Mail Steamship Company's storeship Hermann was chartered by the Yedo Government, acting through the Governors of Kanagawa, and left, under the command of Capt. Fauntleroy, of the steamer New-York, for Yura Bay, a harbor on the western side of the Kishu Peninsula, and about fifty miles south from Osaka. Arriving there the 11th, she took off in the course of twenty-four hours 2,000 men, with arms equipments and twelve brass field-pieces. Among the higher officials were the Tycoon's Minister of Finance, who had been to the United States and purchased the Stonewall, and about which he seemed to be not a little anxious. There were three Vice-Governors and one Governor of Provinces. Among the officers and men, about 150 were wounded, three of whom died in the two days following. One of them had been struck by a round-shot, taking away both legs below the knees. No attempt had been made by the native surgeons to relieve his sufferings or to amputate the ragged stumps, and he died shortly after coming aboard. Some were horribly gashed and hewn by the large two-handed swords which the Samourai wear, showing that the fight in which they had engaged was a hand-to hand one, I noticed that none of the brass field-pieces were at all powder-stained, and showed no signs of ever having been used since they were made. The small arms were of different patterns. Enfield rifles of 1865, and Sharp's breech-loading carbines were most numerous. There were also some Spencer rifles, from the Burnside Rifle Company, 1867. Of these 2,000, about one-half were the soldiers of the Tycoon, and were dressed in an uniform made like the French, while the others were the troops of the Prince of Aidzu, and wore the national dress. The utmost order and good humor prevailed in all of this crowd, each one remaining in his place, and hardly moving until they were landed at Yeddo, on the 14th. The greatest satisfaction was expressed by their principal officers at the treatment they had received on board, and handsome presents of silks and other native productions made by them and afterward by the Governors of Kanagawa to Capt. Fatntleroy. Yuva is in the province of Kii, and is one of the many beautiful embayed harbors for which Japan is noted—perfectly secure, and with bold shores where vessels can lie within less than a length from the land. The villagers live equally by fishing and agriculture. A beautiful and fertile valley, coursed by a small stream, winds back into the mountains for many miles. Oranges are here produced in great quantity and perfection, and large quantities were brought ripe, directly from the trees, aboard ship, where they formed a valuable adjunct to the supply of water. Tea and silk culture are carried on more in the interior, though this province numbers these also among its productions. The great dependence upon fish as an article of food among the Japanese, causes all the people of the sea coast to engage largely in fishing, and the countless sail that one encounters in all weathers proves their hardihood. This would be a most vulnerable point in time of a foreign war, for the destruction of the fishing boats could not fail to occasion famine among great numbers of the inhabitants.

I learned here that orders had been received by the Prince of Kii, from Kioto, and in the name of the Mikado, to behead all these men, but being a relative of Stotsbashi, he had not obeyed.

On the 19th of February the Hermann was again chartered and dispatched down the coast, but at 11:15 P. M., when about thirty miles out, her voyage was interrupted in a manner that barely escaped being disastrous. At 11 o'clock a light was seen three points on the starboard bow. As it was a single, ordinary light, the course was altered one point, bringing the light four points. In fifteen minutes later the light was seen bearing down rapidly, and about to cross the bows. At this moment a second light was seen going up to the mast head, and the vessel was recognized as a steamer. The helm immediately put hard a port, and the engines stopped, prevented the destruction of perhaps both ships, and the bow of the Hermann swinging around struck the stranger near the stern on the port quarter, crushing her bulwarks and ripping the iron side down to the kelson. The vessels swung side by side a moment and then separated. No injury was done the Hermann save the loss of her cutwater and ends of her planking, and she was backed up to the stranger, which was the British steamer Osaca, in charter to the Yedo Government with 400 Japanese troops on board. Two of her men who had come aboard at the moment of the collision were sent back to her, and a message received in return that she requested to be convoyed into a safe anchorage, as she was leaking badly. Accordingly the Hermann went back to Yokohama, arriving about 5 o'clock. Here the Osaca was beached, and the troops discharged. On the morning of the 21st the Hermann again went to sea, and the next day arrived at Matoya Harbor on the east side of the Kishu peninsula, near Owari Bay, and in the province called Ise. Here she lay during three days collecting the scattered remnants of the Tycoon's army, until 1,500 men were aboard, including servants and boys. Leaving there on the 25th, she arrived in Yokohama the next day. It was impossible to learn from conversation with these men anything definite in regard to the relative number of the combatants in the battle near Kioto. I have been led to think that in numeration, when they say any number of thousands, that they mean simply a very large number. A young officer who, having just returned from the Exposition in Paris, could speak a little very indistinct French, told me that the combined army of Satsuma, Chosin and Tosa, the three principal chiefs, numbered 80,000, while the Tycoon had 50,000 men. This is undoubtedly an overestimate. On the 18th of February there appeared in Hiogo an official notice from the British Minister announcing that hostilities had begun between His Majesty the Mikado and the Tycoon, and warning British subjects against breaches of neutrality by selling arms, ships, &c., to either party.

There appeared also one from the United States Minister much to the same effect, and afterward from all or nearly all the other foreign representatives. These notices did not reach Yokohama until the 26th, and were published the next day.

The reports concerning Stotsbashi have been so conflicting, that it has been impossible to gain a true idea of his position. In the ancient history of Japan we find that this office of Tycoon, though originally nothing more than a military office, has by successive encroachments through the course of centuries left nothing of the power of the titular sovereign but the name, while it has itself become, both in name and fact, unquestioned royalty. In January it was stated that he had resigned, and again that he was reinstated by the Mikado. Again in February that he had fled from Osaka, not daring to oppose the Imperial banner, though usurped by Satsuma. Now appear in the journals, what purport to be a more recent announcement by Stotsbashi, of his resignation of supreme power into the hands of the Mikado, in accordance with the opinion of the majority of the people. This was immediately preceded by an order naming the Prince of Kishu, a member of his family, his successor; and followed directly by one establishing a Parliament of all the people, whether officers, farmers or tradesmen, for the purpose of obtaining the opinion of the majority, and declares his intention to submit his cause to a Convention of Daimios.

In reviewing these rapid changes, we see the formerly recognized sovereign of the country, the only one known in all or any of the treaties, by a bold combination, converted by his enemies into a rebel. While his principal enemy, the Prince of Satsuma, by the master-stroke of securing the person of the youthful Mikado, clothes himself with a cloak of legality. The action of the Foreign Ministers in forbidding the sale of arms and munitions and articles contraband of war, which in this case means everything, has been effectually a desertion of their old ally, now in trouble on account of attempting to comply with his treaty obligations, and a treaty with his enemy.

In retiring in the manner described, Stotsbashi becomes Inkio, and is relieved of all Court ceremony, but it is not unlikely that in that capacity he will prove the power behind the Throne greater than the Throne itself. On the 4th of March the Pacific Mail steamship Costa Rica arrived from Shanghae, via Nagasaki and Hiogo. She brought news that the foreign Ministers were to return to Osaka, and had hopes of being admitted to relations with the Mikado in person. Mr. Burlingame and his suite of Mandarins came in her on their way to the United States. The action of the Chinese Government in extending their relations thus with Western Powers is an era in the history of their land, and shows more than anything which can be said, the progress of Western ideas and civilization (Western civilization) in the East. The Pacific Mail steamship China arrived an hour later from Hong Kong, bringing 900 Chinese passengers for San Francisco. She here discharged 800 tons of freight and received 600 tons, and 650 tons of coal.

THE ERIE SLAUGHTER.

Statement of the Sleeping-Car Conductor—Fifteen Persons Unaccounted for.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

Port Jervis, N. Y., Tuesday, April 21.

A telegram has been received here from the General Superintendent of the road, Mr. H. Riddle, to the effect that the report of the conductor of the sleeping-car, who is now in New-York, shows that there were twenty-three passengers in the rear coach that was completely destroyed by fire. As, so far as it has been ascertained, but two persons escaped from this car, and the remains of six only have been recovered, this leaves fifteen of whom there is no trace.

Thorough Investigation by the Coroner's Jury—Important Testimony as to the Speed of the Train and Condition of the Track.

Special Correspondence of the New-York Times.

Port Jervis, Tuesday, April 21, 1868.

There is every reason to believe that we shall at last get at the immediate cause or causes of the Erie Railroad disaster. The Coroner's jury, none of whom are directly or indirectly connected with the Erie Railroad, is most thorough in its investigation, and before they are through with their work the public will be put in possession of such evidence as cannot fail to satisfy them, at least of the earnestness of the investigators. As I have before stated, they were far from satisfied with the first inquests, and this now going on is the result of a wholesome pressure exercised by the Press and by the frequent expressions of dissatisfaction made by the relatives and friends of the dead and wounded.

THE SPEED OF THE TRAIN.

The first witness examined this morning by Mr. Crittenden, counsel for the Coroner and people, was a young physician of New-York, Dr. Wm. B. Linsley, of No. 3 Lafayette-place. Dr. Linsley is not badly hurt, and will probably be able to return home in a few days. Dr. Linsley having described his first impressions as to what was about to happen, says: He had been asleep just before the accident; when he awoke the train was going very fast indeed; he heard people around him talking about the speed; he was nervous about it, and desired to speak to Conductor Judd; after being awake about an hour, and when he was going down the aisle of the car toward the end, he looked at his watch; it was then 3 o'clock; it was within five minutes after this that they went over. [The conductor, in his testimony yesterday, said it was 3:50 when the accident occurred.] He had noticed the irregular motion of the car; knew that they were running very rapidly; it was with great difficulty he could walk through the car, supporting himself on each side; before this, when in his berth, he found it impossible to get in a comfortable position, owing to the motion of the car; he had to brace himself when there; he had felt anxious prior to the accident, knowing that the road was bad, on account of the fast traveling; when at Binghamton, the place where he took the cars, he says he understood that the sleeping berths were all taken; he overheard a conversation between the conductor and his (Dr. Linsley's) friend, which lead to his so understanding it. Mr. Linsley's evidence closed with his experience after the fall of the train.

THE CONDITION OF THE TRACK.

C. K. Gordon, 49 years old, a resident of Narrowsburgh, and Division Foreman, having charge of the track on the Delaware division of the Erie Road from Port Jervis to Susquehanna, testified—I have been in the employment of the Company for about twenty years, and was foreman on the division for eighteen years, and have been Division Foreman for about three or four years; have now charge of all the track, bridges, &c.; I have the general supervision of the track to see what is to be done to it; I make out requisitions through Mr. Douglas for all supplies—for everything that is necessary for repairs, rails, ties—everything that is needed; have subordinates, two of whom are supervisors; it is my duty from time to time to go over the track, to notice its condition, and to instruct the supervisors; I think I have inspected the track of the Delaware Division four times during the last month; the condition of the road, although not so good as in Summer, we thought safe to run over; the most broken rails we have had have been near Narrowsburg; I have no doubt that there were broken rails near Carr's Rock; it is the special duty of the foreman to have these replaced when notified by the watchman; I go over it on a hand-cart, on foot and on the train, and examine it carefully; requisitions are made for rails by the supervisors; I believe three applications have been made for rails to me during the month immediately preceding the accident; it is possible I may have been asked oftener; the supervisors have talked to me at almost every meeting about the rails needed by them; they have been in need of that iron during the whole of the month preceding the accident; during the month preceding the accident, I received 400 tons of rails—four rails to the ton; believe we have received 2,000 rails; about half of that was distributed before the accident; that half was laid; the supervisors frequently complained after they had received the 400 tons that they had not enough iron; the supervisors often stated that the road needed heavy repairing; they complained that they were not furnished rails rapidly enough—the iron that they needed; the Delaware Division has never been in as bad condition since I had charge of it as it was this Spring; the Company never refused giving iron when called for, and did not furnish all that was required; Mr. Riddel frequently stated that he could not get it; the rail-iron we have been using for the last year was very poor. It was the poorest quality of American iron I have ever seen; the worst part of the road lies between Lackawaxen and Port Jervis; every day have replaced rails being inferior or broken; know of an accident that occurred on a train of which Mr. Greene was engineer, on the 29th of August, 1866; he was engineer of a freight train; he ran into the rear end of another freight train at Narrowsburg; several cars, loaded with oil, took fire and exploded; three dwelling-houses were burned, and three persons were so injured that they died; the deaths were caused by the efforts of the persons to escape through the burning oil; believe that The oil was fired by the lamp of the conductor of the freight train run into; don't remember any other accident to the train in charge of Greene; have not heard that Mr. Greene was in the habit of running rapidly; it is true that engineers will run quicker than schedule time to make up for lost time; I do not recollect any accidents having occurred on any train before this one upon which Mr. Jasper Judd was conductor; I examined the track at Carr's Rock as soon as I arrived; I found a broken rail where the truck first left the track; the distance between the position of the broken rail and that at which the cars went over was 750 feet.

THE ENGINEER RE-EXAMINED.

Mr. Greene, the engineer, was next called and examined. He said: I left Susquehanna at seven minutes to eleven the night of the 13th; I was due at four minutes after two at Narrowsburg; I lost time at Hancock; am unable to say how much; I should think between eight and thirteen minutes, owing to a freight train impeding my way; was five minutes behind at Susquehanna; I did not make up any time between Susquehanna and Hancock; lost time from Hancock to Stockport in taking a switch to let a train pass, about twenty minutes more; lost about thirty minutes additional between Stockport and Lordsville; it is about thirty-three miles from Lordsville to Narrowsburg; the schedule time is about an hour and twenty-seven minutes; left Lordsville fifty-two minutes late, and was due there at thirty-seven minutes past twelve—that is, I left there at twenty-nine minutes past one in the morning; I got to Narrowsburg between thirty-five and forty-four minutes past two; was not delayed there; I left it at forty-four minutes past two; Narrowsburg is 34 miles from Port Jervis; stopped on the road between Narrowsburg and Carr's Rock, about a mile and a half west of Shohola, to tighten a key in the train-rod; stopped between two and five minutes; I know that train No. 24 runs ahead of my train; got no notice at Narrowsburg that train No. 24 had not passed me; train No. 12 passes train No. 24 at Lackawaxen, when on time, at thirty-five minutes past two. In running my train all second-class trains are to keep out of my way, unless ordered by telegraph; I pass them sometimes at one station and sometimes at another; can't tell at what time it was that I lost a portion of my train on Wednesday morning; I did not look at my watch; after I felt an unusual jerk upon my engine at Carr's Rock, I stopped without having received any signal; I felt that jerk at about the time when the cars went over; I whistled, gave the signal for breaks down and reversed the engine.

Q.—After you put on the breaks, how far did you run? A.—After I gave the signal I reversed the engine, but afraid that I might have a collision, owing to the disconnection of a portion of my train, I readjusted my lever and went on until it stopped; I think that the train came to a full stop within a distance less than a quarter of a mile from the culvert; did not turn on steam when I readjusted my lever; went on with momentum only; received no signal on the bell; I was twenty-nine minutes running from Narrowsburg to Lackawaxen, eleven miles; I was running at about twenty and twenty-five miles per hour from Narrowsburg to Shohola; did not increase the speed from Shohola to Carr's Rock; I did not receive any instructions to make up time; did not talk to the conductor about making up time, that I remember of; at some points I have made up time during the past two months; I have no recollection of making up time since the 1st of January, excepting when by passing switches I did so; the locomotive would take a side or swinging motion on reverse curves at a speed of ten miles per hour; Mr. Greene wanted details of the accident of running into the oil-train, in which he explained that that accident was due to the fact that he was not flagged enough back to stop his train. He then continued: I did not look at my watch that I recollect until 6:50 or 7:00; I think it about 3:30 that the train reached Carr's rock; at some points I consider the track bad—where I found caution flags; there were none of these at Carr's Rock; within the past year I left behind me a part of a passenger train between Carr's Rock and Narrowsburg; I had twenty cars to that train; I left six behind me; went about eighteen miles before I discovered this—to Narrowsburg Station; have left other cars when running a freight train, for a short distance; the brakemen were on the portion of the train left behind; some of them should have been on the others; I therefore got no warning; it was a foggy morning; the passenger cars were among the six left; on a good dry rail, running at the rate of twenty five miles an hour, I think I could stop by reversing my engine, all four brakes down, in a distance of one hundred yards; I think I could stop so on a curve; if the night were dark and the rails slippery with the dew upon it, it would take me I think three times the distance to stop in.

The testimony of Mr. Greene closed the evidence for this day. Several other witnesses will be examined to-morrow, and this will close the inquest. No further deaths occurred to-day. There are but four of the injured now in a critical condition. Mr. Conklin has received inquiries for other persons supposed to be on the fatal train.

The Count of Syracuse.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Who the "English Civilian" may be that has written the "Trinity of Italy," and what his authority to speak of men and things ex cathedra the English literati seem to doubt; but on one point there is no doubt in my mind—that the extract in your paper of Sunday, April 12, is utterly unjust to the memory of the Count of Syracuse. There is no reason why he should be called a "Silenus" and a "Bacchanal" any more than Thackeray, or any other portly gentleman who liked to take life comfortably. He was a pleasant, genial person, who wore a "Wide-a-wake" hat, (if that is any crime in a Prince,) and probably weighed 200 pounds, which may be a misfortune, but is hardly a crime in any one. His head and features, though strongly showing the Bourbon type, were decidedly intellectual. He was a lover of art and artists, and himself an amateur sculptor of no small ability. Like almost all Italian gentlemen, he was very temperate, never drinking wine before dinner, and but sparingly at dinner, so that it is the strangest abuse of terms to speak of him as a "Bacchanal." In his relations with the other sex he was—well, let us say about as much a Cato as Victor Emmanuel himself. His politics were Liberal, and he constantly tried to make his brother, King "Bomba," and his silly nephew, Bomba's heir, listen to reason and put their house in order—of course without effect. When the crash came, which, while powerless to avert it, he had long foreseen and predicted, he found himself in the way of those who hoped or were likely to profit by the catastrophe. He was connected by marriage with Victor Emmanuel; but the Italian King dreaded his popularity, and it was a great object to make a clean sweep of the whole family. Louis Napoleon was working to make the Two Sicilies a satrapy of his own, with that jolly, old, incapable Murat as titular King, so he, too, gave Syracuse the cold shoulder. The Count saw the ground cut from under him everywhere; he could not even go into exile with the other Bourbons, to whose politics he had always been opposed. On his way back from France to Naples he died of a broken heart, which did not at all surprise those who had last seen him in Paris. This man's vices were the vices of the system, political, religious and social, in which he had the misfortune to be born and brought up; his virtues were his own. It may be very green in me to think and say so, but I do think that he was sincerely regretted by most of those who knew him. He certainly was by

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

Minor Items.—Mathew Lyon, a cartman, was employed yesterday by an unknown man to remove a box containing a hand-press from No. 227 Church-street to the New-Haven Railroad Depot. A dispute regarding the proposed change arose between them after the press had been placed on the cart, and an officer approaching, the unknown ran off, leaving the press, which is supposed to have been stolen, in the hands of the Police.....Alice Fee, of No. 13 Mulberry-street, on Friday quarreled with John Hoolahan, a blind man, who kicked her in the abdomen, causing the premature birth of her child the following day. The case came to the knowledge of the Police only yesterday. An investigation was held at the Sixth Ward Police-station by Coroner Keenan, when Dr. Beach ascertained that the child had been stillborn, and that the alleged violence had not caused premature birth. The prisoner was accordingly discharged.....Ellen Donohue, aged 38 and a native of Ireland, was found dead in bed at the basement lodging-house, No. 38 Oak-street, yesterday. The Coroner was notified.....John Credan, of No. 526 West Twenty-seventh-street, fell from his cart yesterday in Second-avenue, and sustained such severe injuries that he was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

Educational.—At a special meeting of the Vice-Principals of the various public schools of New-York City, held recently, in Grammar School Building No. 35, it was resolved that the studies comprised in the highest three grades require too much labor from both teachers and pupils, and that this excessive labor arises in most part from "reviews" of previous grades, indefinite outlines and a want of proper apportionment of studies in the grades; and further, that the abolition of corporal punishment would be prejudicial to the best interests of the schools. Messrs. Hugh, Carlisle and Kennard were then elected by ballot to represent the Vice-Principals and support the resolutions before the Board of Education. Messrs. Duffy, Hendrickson and Carlisle were appointed a committee to report a plan of permanent organization.

Presentation.—A complimentary presentation was made on Monday evening by the Fifteenth-street Branch of the Orpheon Choral Schools to Mr. Jerome Hopkins, founder of the Orpheon system in this country. The gift consisted of a beautifully and highly wrought silver-mounted baton, elaborately engraved and bearing appropriate mottoes. The presentation was made in a neat speech by Mr. Graham Trull, one of the Orpheonists, and was responded to by Mr. Hopkins in a manner which brought down hearty applause from all present, but especially from the young ladies. The occasion was a very pleasant one and was highly creditable to all concerned.

NEW-JERSEY.

Fatal Accident—Death of a Well-known Sporting Character.—At about 8 o'clock on Monday, as Oscar Sanford, the well-known sportsman and pigeon-shooter, proprietor of the Mosquito Tavern, on the Newark pike, near the Hackensack River, was walking down the track of the New-Jersey Railroad at West End, Hudson City, he was run over by the Washington through train and killed instantly. He was walking on the opposite track and stepped from in front of one train directly in front of another, without seeing the latter. Not a scratch was visible on his person, death having been caused by dislocation of the neck. He was about 50 years of age and leaves a large family. Coroner Warren, of Jersey City, will hold an inquest.

Items.—Walter McMullen, while intoxicated, was struck by a train of the Morris and Essex Road, but escaped with only a contused wound or two....Still another mad dog has been killed in Newark....In a drunken fight on the Morris Canal, a man named Daly was pounded almost to death. He refused to enter any complaint....The South Classis of Bergen is holding a regular session.

Child Abandoned.—Two women, mother and daughter, both named Mary Conovan, have been lodged in jail in Jersey City, charged with abandoning the child of the daughter, which was found under a stoop. The women were from New-York.

The Late Stabbing Affray in Hoboken.—James Dwyer, the man so severely stabbed in Hoboken on Sunday night, was still alive last evening, but small hope is entertained of his recovery.

Fire.—The laundry of the Female Seminary at West Hoboken, was destroyed by fire yesterday morning. The total loss amounted to $1,200, upon which there is an insurance of $800.

Courts.—The April term of the Essex County Courts commenced at Newark yesterday. The calendar is small, both civil and criminal, and the term is expected to prove very short.

Avoid Poison.

Invalid reader, do you know what nine-tenths of the bitter compounds you are solicited by the proprietors to accept as universal panaceas are composed of? Give heed for a moment. They are manufactured from unpurified alcohol, containing a considerable portion of fusil oil—a poison almost as deadly as prussic acid. The basis of the regular tinctures of the Materia Medica is the same. No amount of "herbal extracts" can overcome the bad tendency of this pernicious element. The essence of sound rye, thoroughly rectified, is the only stimulant which can be safely used as a component of a tonic, alterative and anti-bilious medicine, and HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS is the only medicinal preparation in the world in which this article is used as an ingredient. Hence the extraordinary effects of this great specific. It gives strength without producing excitement. No other tonic does this. All the ordinary bitters flush the face and affect the brain. HOSTETTER'S BITTERS diffuses an agreeable calm through the nervous system, promotes digestion and produces sleep. No other tonic so quickly revives the exhausted physical energies, restores the appetite and removes the gloom and depression which always accompanies weakness of the bodily powers. It purges from the system the morbid humors which retard its natural functions, and which bring paleness to the cheek and suffering to the brow. It banishes those clogs upon pleasure, restores the system to high health, and necessarily proves a valuable adjunct to the digestive organs. A trial is all that is needed to establish it in the confidence of the skeptic.

IMPORTANT TO PERSONS ADVANCED IN YEARS, TROUBLED WITH CONSTIPATED BOWELS, AND DIFFICULTY OF PASSING WATER, IMPERFECT DIGESTION, FOOD CONVERTED TO WATER.

Letter from a well-known citizen of Ohio—Mr. J. Hildreth, aged 63 years, Mansfield Ohio.

Mansfield, Ohio, March 21, 1868.

Dr. Radway: Inclosed find $1. Send by mail as many of your Regulating Pills as you can afford. I wish your Pills and Resolvent. I like them very much, and recommend them to others. Our druggists have none; they say the run is so great they have sold out. I am free to say, for myself, they are the best medicine I ever found. I wish you would inform me if there is an danger if they are retained in the system for a length of time, by taking one or more every evening for a length of time, as there are many good medicines that are injurious to take for a length of time. * * * I have for several years been troubled with COSTIVENESS, so that even injections would not procure an evacuation. I was all the time in more or less pain from the flatulency, with large discharges of wind. At the same time I was afflicted with urinary difficulties; at times it almost killed me to pass water, very scanty and in drops, at other times large quantities, almost amounting to diabetes. My age is 63. I tried everything I thought would do good; nothing afforded relief. In short, I procured one box of RADWAY'S REGULATING PILLS; took six; free evacuations followed—no sickness, no pain. Took two at bedtime. This secured a stool each day. Sometimes would take three, at others four, each day. Result—regular for several days without pills. All pain and trouble from wind ceased. Got one bottle of R. R. RESOLVENT. Urine now all right. I am well known, more or less, all over this State, and not unfavorably for truth and veracity. Send pills without delay. (Signed) J. HILDRETH.

Answer.—Radway's Pills are composed exclusively of vegetable extracts, and are dissolved in the stomach, and their properties absorbed through the circulation, acting on the blood, chyle, bile and other fluids of the system, passing off through the excretions, and not like mercury, calomel, corrosive sublimate, antimony and the common drastic substances, that form the basis of ordinary pills, accumulate in the system and become deposited in the bones, joints, cartilages and glands of the system, but they communicate their curative influence through the blood, chyle, bile, sweat, urine, &c., correcting, regulating, purifying, cleansing and purging from the body all unhealthy humors, and restoring functional harmony to the secreting vessels and orifices of every gland and organ.

In all cases of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Imperfect Digested Food, their influence is wonderful, and no matter how weak or paralyzed the bowels may be, or how irregular or costive, in the aged or others, one dose will insure a discharge, and one or two insure regular stools, at least once a day. All aged gentlemen and ladies, who have used them, prefer them to all others, and the young and vigorous find them the most thorough regulator of the liver and bowels known. In cases where the bowels have been paralyzed by lead, and other minerals, and from artisans' diseases, these pills have secured free passage where all other means failed. In bilious attacks, inflammation of the bowels, erysipelas, fevers, &c., that causes ulceration of the lining of the bowels and intestines, they are mild, sure and healing. Every family should keep these pills. They are the best family physician in the world, and only 25 cents per box, or $1 20 for six boxes. Sent to any part of the United States by mail.

The use of the Sarsaparillian, or Renovating Resolvent, in your case, showed its importance in urinary difficulties. The aged are more or less troubled with these affections, weakness of the digestive organs and imperfectly digested food being the cause; the insufficiency of chyle, or its unheatthy condition, fails to dissolve the substances taken into the stomach, so as to pass off through the alimentary canal, it is (the food) converted into water, and seeks an escape through the kidneys, thus establishing a foreign secretion of these glands: hence the urine becomes charged with foreign constituents, causing deposits of gravel, brick-dust, lithic acid, albumen, sugar, &c., irritating the bladder, causing weakness, paralysis, catarrh, and pain to the canal of urethra in its passage out of the system. Hundreds of aged persons suffer from this as well as others. A few doses of Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent would remove these difficulties, and with the aid of the pills, secure healthy and perfect digestion. Hundreds of persons suffering from kidney and urinary disturbances and diseases, may rest assured of this being the true cause. Now, in such cases, Buchu, Cubebs, Juniper, Gin, &c., are dangerous, and will prolong the cure, and establish worse and new difficulties. Cubebs are irritating, and make the urine acrid, causing pain, itching, &c., along its passage. Every well-informed medical man knows what I state is a fact. Let those who are troubled just try the Sarsaparillian Resolvent and Radway's Pills, you will find almost immediate relief; it will do for you what it has done for Mr. Hildreth. This gentleman is a stranger to us, we give his testimony as we received it: of one fact rest assured, one bottle of the Sarsaparillian, or Renovating Resolvent, is worth all the Buchu leaves that were ever gathered by the most enlightened Hottentot, who, perhaps, knows as much about Buchu as the constitution, whether it be shattered, wrecked, or preserved pure and entire.

The Pareira Brava, Sarsaparillian and other vegetable substances, are gathered for Dr. Radway by persons of intelligence, who are acquainted with the different varieties of each root, so as not to make a mistake. We do not trust the gathering of our roots to a lot of savage Hottentots, hence the certainty of securing the genuine roots.

ST. LOUIS AND IRON MOUNTAIN RAILROAD COMPANY'S SEVEN PER CENT. FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS, FEBRUARY AND AUGUST COUPONS.

The title of the St. Louis and Iron Mountain Railroad having been confirmed by act of the General Assembly of the State of Missouri, and the bonds declared valid, the work of extending the same to a connection with the Southern system of roads at Columbus, Ky., is now going rapidly forward. Ninety-one miles being in profitable operation, forty-five miles of new work graded, with rails enough on hand for forty-seven miles, it is expected that the whole line, from St. Louis to Belmont, 193 miles, will be opened for business early next year, so that there will be a continuous line from St. Louis to Mobile, New-Orleans and other Southern cities. A very large traffic is anticipated.

The old part of the road (91 miles) already earns enough to secure all the interest on the whole mortgage debt, and the extension completed, will vastly increase the earnings. The proceeds of these bonds going into the extension of the road adds to the security, and a projected branch, southwestwardly from Pilot Knob, for which a cash subsidy of $15,000 per mile is granted by the State, as a free gift to the Company, will add very much to the value of their property.

THOS. ALLEN, President, St. Louis, Mo.

We, the undersigned, cordially recommend these seven per cent. mortgage bonds of the St. Louis and Iron Mountain Railroad as a good security. The revenue of the road will be large, and the administration of the affairs of the Company is in capable and experienced hands, and is entitled to the greatest confidence of the public.

THE ERIE CONTROVERSY.

Skirmishing Yesterday—Two Unsatisfactory Witnesses—A Discussion on the Privileges of Counsel.

In the matter of Jay Gould and others for contempt.—The examinations in the cases of the directors of the Erie Railroad Company, who are charged with violating the injunctions in the Schell suit, was resumed yesterday, before Judge BARNARD. The usual array of counsel was present, and besides the counsel, the array of spectators who pressed up to the railing that divides those within the bar and those without, and returned as often as the officers of the Court compelled them to be seated, showed the interest felt in the matter. Even the discussion on the subject of privileged communications (a dry matter supposed to be of interest exclusively to the profession) did not thin the crowd, who waited patiently till the last moment for what would turn up.

Mr. Belden, who had promised to be present, was there, but was not placed on the stand. Counsel proceeded to draw the commitments for him, but almost immediately the first witness was called.

Mr. William Heath was sworn in the several cases, and was examined by Mr. Clark, as follows:—I reside in New-York; my business is that of a broker; I presume I was in New-York on the 7th and 9th of March last; at least I don't remember being out of town; I presume I sold some Erie on the 9th of March as usual; I could not say with any precision what amount we sold; to the best of my recollection I did not sell any; my firm is Wm. Heath & Co.; my partner is James M. Ellis.

Q.—Did your firm sell any Erie stock on that day? Objected to.

Judge Barnard—If on the examination of the witness it shall be shown that he knows nothing about it, it will be stricken from the record.

Exception taken by Mr. Field as reversing the invariable order of evidence.

Mr. Fullerton retorted, saying that yesterday, in the examination of Mr. Belden, when he wanted to cast calumny upon persons who did not deserve it, he was perfectly willing to have hearsay evidence. He claimed that in important particulars this examination differed from a trial.

Mr. Field replied that vituperation and threats amounted to nothing. There had been no offer on his part to prove by Belden, any hearsay evidence. When they said a suit was brought in bad faith, he wanted to show that current report all over the city, justified the suit.

Judge Barnard—Do I understand the counsel to say that rumors upon the streets against any certain party is enough to warrant a suit being brought against him? [To the witness.] Answer the question. A.—The firm made sales of Erie stock that day, I believe between 30,000 and 40,000 shares; the stock was sold through other parties; I cannot name those other parties without referring to the books; I remember only one, Mr. Lippincott; I cannot remember any others, and am not positive as to him; I think he sold 3,000 shares; I think we did not sell that day upward of 40,000 shares; I cannot state positively; I think it was not nearer 50,000 shares; sold them on behalf of my principal, James Fisk, Jr.; he belongs to the firm of Fisk, Belden & Co.; I know Mr. Belden; I saw him on the stand yesterday; I know Mr. Fisk; did not know whether he was a director of the Erie Railway Company; do not get know of my own knowledge.

Mr. Field—Then he does not know.

Mr. Clark—That is mere turbulence, mere fretting. [Laughter.] I have a right to sift that knowledge; I will, however, waive the question for the present. [Laughter.]

Judge Barnard commanded order in the Court, stating that it was not a theatre, and on a repetition of the irregularity, he would cause the court-room to be cleared.

Witness continued—I was employed on the day the sale was made; I forget the date; it was immediately before I sold it; I cannot say what date nor what day of the week it was, and cannot associate it with anything to enable me to say; I have entries which will show; I have a book-keeper; his name is Henry Hooper; I have no means of stating what day we made the sale except from knowledge obtained from the book; don't recollect where I was when employed; must have been employed between 10 and 3; cannot state the hour; cannot say whether the stock was sold in the stock board or the outside board; it must have been either one or the other; I mean the open board; it meets at 10 and 1 and keeps till 3; does not open between the regular boards; it has regular hours; I did not receive certificates from Mr. Fisk; do not know of my own knowledge whether we made the delivery of the stock we sold; I presume that we delivered it; don't know from whom we received them, if we did deliver them; don't know who received the money, or any of it; don't know whether we received checks; don't know what books would show; have nothing to do with the books; Mr. Hooper has charge of them; neither member of the firm knows about the books; saw none of the certificates; the cashier makes delivery of stock; his name is Charles E. Quincy; he is in town; I cannot give the dates of the certificates; I did nothing with the proceeds; cannot say what the firm did; do not know whether they are yet in our possession; sold the stock at various prices; I think from 75 to 84; the gross amount of sales in money I do not know; will amount to upward of $2,000,000; I can figure it—about $3,000,000, I should say; do not know whether we have the certificates in our possession, of my own knowledge; do not know from any information I have received; have never asked the question; have had not the slightest curiosity on the subject; we keep bank accounts in the Fourth National Bank, and Bank of New York, and no other; the checks are signed by me; Mr. Ellis is also authorized to sign checks; don't know whether I have signed checks for these certificates; I signed them all in blank; the cashier has charge of them; the cashier, Mr. Quincy, could tell better; do not know the system in our office; know Mr. Drew and Mr. Groesbeck; no one but Mr. Fisk was a party to my employment; cannot recollect whether I saw Mr. Drew on that day; nothing passed between us relative to the sale; do not know where Mr. Fisk is; I last saw him about a month ago in Taylor's Hotel, Jersey City; do not know whether any one was with him; do not know whether we have made an account of the sales; any one of the clerks would know; their names are Mr. Quincy, Mr. Hooper, Mr. Wm. C. Rice, Mr. C. W. Preston and Mr. Frank Darling, that is all; cannot say whether our sales affected the price of Erie in the market; do not know whether the price fell; do not know where any of our books are now; do not know whether any books have been destroyed; have no knowledge on the subject.

To Mr. Pierrepont—I did not sell any myself; I was present.

Re-direct—Mr. Lippincott is the only one I can remember beside myself, who sold; do not recollect his selling more than 5,000 shares; do not know whether the books will show; cannot tell who was present.

Mr. Field—You just answered that you were.

Witness—I did not understand the question.

Mr. Field—You were asked if you were present.

Witness—I was attending the Stock Board all day, and was passing in and out; cannot say that I was present when a single share was sold.

Mr. Field moved to strike out witness' testimony in reference to the sale of stock.

Motion denied until the books should be produced.

Witness—I do not know whether my partner employed others; I ordered various brokers to sell; Mr. George H. Morse, my assistant, sold some; I cannot tell whether I limited the price; I think part were limited, and cannot say whether part were or were not; I know Mr. Lapsley; think he sold 5,000 shares; his place of business is in Broad-street; his name is G. W. Lapsley; he is alone in business; not in a firm; I cannot recall any other persons; I instructed Mr. Lapsley personally; I knew Mr. Rogers; think he did not sell any; could not identify any of the certificates; do not think I ever saw one of them.

Mr. James M. Ellis recalled.

Judge Barnard suggested that somebody of the witness' firm be allowed to leave the Court to attend to the business of their house.

Mr. Fullerton—I should judge they all forgot all about their business when they got here.

Mr. Pierrepont—I ask that Mr. Heath be allowed to go to attend to his business until the books are brought.

Judge Barnard asked Mr. Fullerton for his consent.

Mr. Fullerton—I consent to nothing. Mr. Heath has not, by his course, commended himself to my favorable consideration.

The question was argued by Mr. Pierrepont, who was replied to by Messrs. Fullerton and Davis.

Judge Barnard—I direct Mr. Heath to go to his office and return with his books at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Pierrepont objected to the witness being compelled to bring voluminous books, which are in daily use and whose absence would seriously interrupt business, claiming that memoranda taken from the books would be competent and sufficient evidence.

Mr. Fullerton insisted on the books being brought.

Mr. Field asked by what authority Mr. Heath was required to bring his books, he not having been summoned to produce papers. If Mr. Heath would take his advice he would do no such thing.

Mr. Heath, having in the meantime left the court-room, Mr. Fullerton suggested that if Mr. Field wished to volunteer such mischievous advice, he might follow him, and would probably overtake him before he got to Wall-street, if his speed was good enough.

Mr. Field called attention to the impropriety of Mr. Fullerton's remarks, and Mr. Fullerton replied that he hoped to see a reform in Mr. Field in matters of courtesy.

The examination of Mr. Ellis was then resumed as follows:

I am a member of the firm of William Heath & Co.; have heard the testimony of last witness; recollect the sale he spoke of; don't remember whether I sold any; think I can swear positively that I did not; do not know who sold it; do not know of any person; heard no instructions by Mr. Heath to any one; was not present; know certificates were received by our firm; the receiving stock clerk, Charles E. Quincy, received them; do not know from whom they were received; think I was present when they were delivered, but cannot swear to this particular stock; don't remember the time; it was a very busy day; presume he did receive them; couldn't swear from whom he received them; they were delivered by some boys.

Q.—Who gave this stock to your firm? A.—You have not yet identified the stock; I have heard nothing about what stock you mean; my recollection is that the firm sold certificates that day representing thirty or forty thousand dollars in stock; the firm received the certificates; don't know as to these particular certificates.

Q.—Were you present when those certificates were given to your firm? A.—I understand this is a sale of certain certificates, which must have been signed, numbered, &c.; when they are identified I may be able to answer your question, and I may not be able.

The question was modified, and the witness proceeded as follows: There were deliveries made in our office; the stock was brought in by boys, and came from whatever houses the boys came from; boys were coming in all day; boys brought in those certificates; don't refer to any one boy; don't know who they were; boys must have brought in some of them and put in the stock through a place in the desk to Mr. Quincy who received them; did not receive any stock from Mr. Fisk; do not think they delivered any on that day; on the following day stock was sent in from Smith, Gould, Martin & Co.; cannot answer as to the amount; it was brought in by boys; I bought some; got it from either Mr. Smith or Mr. Martin; cannot tell the amount; it was received for delivery; to whom I didn't know; had no instructions; the firm had sold large quantities of Erie stock as was testified to by Mr. Heath.

Mr. Field here objected to that course of examination as being hearsay evidence.

Mr. Fullerton remarked that it seemed necessary to refresh the witnesses' memory.

Mr. Field submitted that it was not proper to so address a witness who seemed willing to answer.

Mr. Fullerton repeated what he had said. If the witness had a certificate of character from the counsel he might put it to what use he would, he might need it before he got through.

Judge Barnard—If any such language was addressed to the witness, it is wrong.

Mr. Fullerton—The witness is trying to evade me; I might as well speak out the truth.

Witness—That is not the truth; I have sought to evade nothing.

Several questions of privilege were then submitted to the Court, when Mr. Clark objected to that system of catechising the Court.

Judge Barnard remarked to Mr. Clark that the Court was able to take care of itself.

Mr. Clark insisted that the object of the witness was to evade the truth, defeat the ends of justice, and delay the trial.

Mr. Field again claimed that such language was derogatory.

Judge Barnard—If they have said so, it was wrong, and they would consider themselves rebuked.

Mr. Fullerton replied: Then we are rebuked.

Witness stated that the proceedings in yesterday's trial had been published in the newspapers, and he presumed these would be; and as statements derogatory to his character had been made, that they should be stricken out and not published as a part of the record.

The question was then repeated by the stenographer—"Had your firm sold that stock," &c.? A.—I do not know; presume they have; the books will show; I received them from Smith, Gould, Martin & Co., to deliver them to our receiving-clerk; he had informed me that certain Erie stock, which we had promised to receive from them, was there; did not know what it was to be brought for; understood about it; can't tell exactly the amount received from Smith, Gould, Martin & Co.; the arrangement, I think, was to take two or three thousand shares; know I took one lot; do not know who gave instructions for the sale r gave no instructions; none were given in my presence; can't answer whether the firm declined any of this stock which I brought from Smith, Gould, Martin & Co.; did not receive pay for it; presume we received pay for part; don't know what was done with the proceeds; for the stock of Smith, Gould, Martin & Co., I took a check in; the amount I don't remember; probably from $155,000 to $160,000; it was a check of our firm upon the Fifth National Bank; don't know whether the firm purchased the stock; know it was arranged for me to take this check and bring the stock; don't know further than that what the arrangement was between our house and Smith, Gould, Martin & Co.; know they were to deliver and we were to pay; don't know why; may have ideas what the transaction meant; will not testify to ideas; took no check to Fisk, Belden & Co.; the only house I went to to receive Erie stock that day was Smith, Gould, Martin & Co.'s; received none from Fisk, Belden & Co.; can't tell the date, or whether it was Saturday or Monday; they were new certificates; don't know to whom issued, or whom powers of attorney were signed; it is not my practice to keep accounts of numbers; it is the practice of my firm; Mr. Quincy knows all about it; can't tell you the names of the books; the firm has a receipt and delivery book, and a transfer book; I make no entries; have seen entries in both of those books; can only testify as to the general practice of the office; will answer if I am instructed to, otherwise I will not.

Mr. Fullerton—Well, let us have some instructions. It is about time for another objection. [Laughter.]

Witness—The general practice of the office is to take the numbers, but very often it is not done; in the transfer and receipt and delivery books the numbers are not put down, as far as my observation goes.

Cross-examined by Mr. Pierrepont—Our business in February and March last was quite large; there was a vast number of transactions in Erie and other stock, which did not relate to this stock; the usual mode of delivering was by boys; in all respects the business was done in the ordinary form; frequently do not enter the numbers; remember we did not take numbers of some of this stock from Smith, Gould, Martin & Co.; some days within that time our transactions amounted to $1,000,000 or $2,000,000 per day; it is impossible, of course, to keep run of all these things; that is the reason why I cannot remember any more definitely; Hath's business is simply buying and selling stocks; I buy and sell gold and borrow and lend money all day long; we are out-door men; the cashier and book-keeper run the machine in the office; this business is all crowded between the hours of half-past nine and five; have not tried to suppress any testimony, and the other day only refused because the referee would not instruct me.

Re-direct examination resumed—Our general practice is to record numbers; in this case it wasn't done; we had so much to do we couldn't take the numbers; don't know how many came in one batch; got the Erie stock and delivered it to the receiving clerk; can swear to a lot of two thousand; can't say whether that was the batch of which we couldn't get the run of the numbers; can't say whether we have the means of ascertaining.

The witness was then dismissed.

The clerk stated that Gen. Diven, in his testimony, mistook the name of the boy whom he mentioned, calling him George, while his name was John.

Jonathan W. Dillon was the next witness called, and having been identified by Gen. Diven as the boy mentioned in his testimony of Monday, was sworn in the several cases, and testified as follows:

Am employed by the Erie Railway Company in the Secretary's office; recollect the Saturday before I brought up the book to Mr. Diven's house; went there on Sunday; Mr. Hilton requested me to go in the office of the Erie Railway Company; Mr. Smith, a clerk to the Secretary, Mr. Otis, and myself were there, and no one else to my knowledge.

Q.—What request was made you?

Objected to by Mr. Field as hearsay, and objection sustained.

Witness—Mr. Hilton gave me some instructions; went to the transfer office, on Pine-street, on Sunday morning; Mr. Hilton and his brother were there; no one else was there; no Directors were there; never went there on a Sunday before; then I went to Mr. Diven's house, taking a certificate book, which I think I could identify; I identify the book numbered 63,001 to 63,250 as the one I took; it was wrapped up and addressed; gave it to Mr. Diven at his house; he gave me another book; can't say for certain this is the one; have an impression that it is; brought one of these to Mr. Diven, and brought down the other; gave it to Mr. Hilton on Sunday, at Pine-street, in the middle of the day, somewhere between half-past 11 and 1 o'clock; Mr. Hilton, his brother and I were there, no one else; was not there either the day before or the day after; do not know when the books were closed.

The witness, on being again shown the book, explained that he took to Mr. Diven the book numbered 63,251 to 63,500, and brought back the one numbered 63,001 to 63,250.

The cross-examination of the witness was then commenced by Mr. Pierrepont.

Witness explained how he had become confused in his former testimony as to the books, and, after the books were correctly numbered and put in evidence by the counsel, the witness was dismissed.

Martin E. Greene was the next witness. He testified: Am in no business; was at the Fifth-avenue Hotel on the evening of the 7th of March last; saw Mr. Groesbeck there; he applied to me to take $5,000,000 worth of stock; cannot give you his exact language; he said Mr. Drew wished to sell me $5,000,000 worth of the convertible bonds of the Erie Railway Company, holding me harmless in the transaction.

Q.—What was the proposition made you? A.—I have not the full scope of the question; would prefer it, if your question were more specific and not so comprehensive; I have just stated his proposition made to me at that time; nothing as to price and terms was said, except that he could dispose of them to other persons, but wanted to sell them to one he could rely upon; no terms and price were stated; then went to Mr. Drew's house to Groesbeck; on arriving there went into the dining-room with Mr. Drew, and had an interview with Mr. Drew and Mr. Groesbeck; Mr. Drew repeated to me his wish to sell.

Mr. Field interrupted and objected to hearsay evidence.

The Court ruled that the witness should give the language as near as he could.

Witness resumed—I think Groesbeck spoke first in reference to it, and Mr. Drew said yes, he wished to sell me some stock; don't recollect what Mr. Groesbeck said; don't recollect whether allusion was made to the previous offer; Mr. Drew knew very well what I was there for.

Objected to as before, and the same ruling made.

Witness resumed—I cannot tell what each person said; think Mr. Drew said "yes," he wanted to sell me $5,000,000 worth of stock, holding me harmless in the transaction; think Mr. Groesbeck repeated the offer in substance, after which Mr. Drew said "Yes;" I asked Mr. Drew at what price; he said 77 cents on the dollar; think nothing was said about terms; Mr. Drew said he would indemnify me for loss; nothing was said about the stock of the Erie Railway Company; nothing was said about how I was to pay; asked Mr. Drew if he had a right to sell these bonds; he said he had; had purchased them at the office of the Erie Railway Company, and that half an hour afterward he was served with an injunction; nothing, I think, was said about stock, and nothing about the source from which the money was to come to pay for these bonds; I saw Mr. Gould as he came out of the room; I mean Mr. Gould the director; Mr. Drew then proposed we should go to Mr. Field's house on the north side of Gramercy Park; Mr. Drew, Mr. Gould, Mr. Groesbeck and myself started to go there, and went there; saw there Mr. Field and Mr. Belden, whom I know by sight; it was the Mr. Belden who has been here as a witness; they were the only ones whom I recognized; this was about ten P. M.; my interview with Groesbeck was about nine P. M.

Q.—State what was said at Mr. Field's house.

Objected to by Mr. Pierrepont, upon which a long argument ensued.

Mr. Pierrepont raised his objection in order to protect the conversation between Mr. Drew and Mr. Field, which was professional intercourse. This private conversation, in a private room, with a private counsel they cannot call out. The conversation at the hotel they can get, and the conversation at Mr. Drew's they can get, but not this, however willing the witness may be. If all the parties were dead but one, that one, even then, could not reveal what was so said. There was a relationship of counsel and client between Mr. Drew and Mr. Field.

Mr. Clark—I claim it was a conspiracy going on and no consultation, but one of them happened to be a lawyer.

At this point a recess was announced for ten minutes by Judge BARNARD, who stated that the counsel on resuming the case must prepare to meet these questions: First—Whether any relation of counsel existed between the witness and Mr. Field. Second—Whether if an attorney gives his client criminal advice it is protected.

After the intermission, Mr. Pierrepont resumed, stating as conceded facts, that Mr. Field was counsel for Mr. Drew; was not for Mr. Greene; that the interview was sought by Mr. Drew in Mr. Field's private room.

Mr. Clark—It is not conceded that it was a consultation between attorney and client, it was a combination for concocting means of safely evading your Honor's injunction.

Mr. Pierrepont continued—It was a plain legal principle that all this was sacredly protected, neither client nor counsel could reveal, nor any party in a relation that brought him in to take advantage of the advice of counsel could reveal it. If Mr. Greene could evade it the rule was gone; there could be no confidence between client and counsel. The rule was on grounds of public policy in order to avoid scandal. A lawyer is not allowed to reveal what his client has confided to him even should he afterward quarrel with him. So client cannot reveal such interviews on similar grounds. Counsel here read from Greenleaf on Evidence. He wished to state that if the evidence were admitted, nothing injurious to Mr. Field would be elicited; but they desired, so far as might be, to exclude scandal and keep the door shut against it. Mr. Pierrepont continued to read from Greenleaf on Evidence, and to comment on cases to show how wide this privilege was. It could not be violated in order to show that there was a conspiracy. The rule was absolute, and if they could compel the client to reveal such communications on the idea that there might be a conspiracy, and it should turn out that there was none, the mischief would be done. Mr. Greene was, for the purposes of this consultation, Mr. Field's client.

Mr. O'Conor replied that Mr. Drew, as it appeared, had entered into a contract with Mr. Greene, and had, for his own convenience, taken him to Mr. Field's. There he was present at an interview, not being servant, clerk or agent of Mr. Drew, nor clerk, interpreter, agent or client of Mr. Field. The consultation takes place in his presence, and on this basis of fact they had heard argument as to the sacredness of the privacy of private consultations between client and counsel; but the other side forgot that neither counsel nor client was called on to disclose facts, only a third person whom Mr. Drew saw fit to have present. No privilege could be pleaded. If persons chose to consult their lawyers in the open street in a loud voice, so that everyone could hear, that was not protected so far as the hearers were concerned. Privacy consisted in the exclusion of all persons but the attorney and client. The admission of a single person beyond those strips off the privacy. It is not true that a party can meet to plot and plan whatever they choose without being compelled to reveal it, merely because one of their number holds the parchment of an attorney. If so, the profession would receive some strange acquisitions. The consultation, too, must relate to legal proceedings in esse, or contemplated. He quoted cases in support of his views, the privilege extended to interpreters ex necessitate. He claimed that there was no privacy in the matter, and that they might, therefore, if they chose, call Mr. Field. He instanced this by the evidence which was sometimes called for of attorneys before Commissioners in equity.

Mr. Burrill replied on behalf of the Drew party, showed that the very claim that this was a conspiracy, showed that this consultation related to proceedings in a suit actually pending. The main question was, was this a private consultation, or was the privacy lost by the admission of Greene. The limitation was when persons were brought in who were in no way connected with the transaction. But Mr. Greene was connected with the matter. The rule was not confined to the case of private consultation. The cases that seemed to limit it to that were the cases where the counsel was as much the counsel of one as the other, and they were not connected. Mr. Greene was brought in, not as a disinterested person, but at Mr. Drew's suggestion. If a quarrel were to arise between Mr. Drew and Mr. Greene in which this interview was pertinent, and Mr. Drew called on Mr. Field to testify, the opposing counsel would be the first one to invoke the rule. If Mr. Greene's evidence were admitted, it might be necessary for them to contradict it, and the only way of contradicting it would be to place Mr. Field on the stand, and thus compel him to be counsel to give evidence as to professional confidences.

Judge Barnard decided that Mr. Field not being counsel for Mr. Greene, and Mr. Drew not being concerned in these proceedings, that the evidence was not privileged. It made no difference whether four persons or four hundred persons were present as to a question of privilege. That the objection was overruled, but it being late, he would adjourn the matter to this morning.

THE ALLEGED CONTEMPT OF JAY GOULD—BAIL GIVEN IN THE SUM OF $50,000, AND THE WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS DISCHARGED.

The habeas corpus proceedings in the Common Pleas, which were adjourned over from last week by Judge Barrett, came up again to-day, and, after some informal discussion by counsel, it was finally arranged that the bond in the sum of $50,000 required by the order of Judge Barnard should be executed, and the writ discharged. An affidavit was read, which, taken with those previously produced, the Court said, exonerated Mr. Gould from any suspicion of having intended any contempt of court. The bond having been executed in the required sum, with Daniel S. Miller and Henry N. Smith as sureties, the writ was discharged.

The New County Court-House.

This building seems to be just as near completion as it was at this time last year. Most of the workmen have been withdrawn, and, except a few painters and glaziers, there are no others to be seen about the premises. It is quite evident that the building is not much more than two-thirds completed, and that it will require half as much more money to finish it as has been already expended on it. None of the apartments are as yet painted or decorated in any way. The halls and passages are only partially paved, and there are not more than half a dozen rooms that can at present be occupied. The Court of Appeals sat for one term in the basement room in the southeast angle of the building. This room has now been transferred to the Surrogate, who moved in yesterday. The apartment is large and well proportioned, and with the adjoining offices forms a very convenient place for the transaction of public business. On the opposite side of the hall a Special Term of the Supreme Court is being held. All the Courts will eventually be held on the upper floors. On the second floor in the southwest angle of the building are the chamber and offices intended for the occupation of the Board of Supervisors. They are like all the other rooms plainly finished. They will probably be occupied next month.

Large quantities of furniture of the most massive and expensive kind have already been sent in for the furnishing of the various offices. For a long time a quantity of this furniture stood in the vestibule of the building, exposed to the many accidents that would be likely to occur to it in so exposed a situation. It has now, however, been removed.

Up to the present time it is understood that there has been expended on the Court-house the sum of $3,576,506 10, of which $450,000 was for the ground. It is safe to assert that it will require another million to complete it. To this must be added the cost of decorating and furnishing, the aggregate of which may be estimated by the amount expended on the Chamber of the Board of Aldermen some six or seven years ago. For merely frescoing, painting, carpeting and upholstering this room the bills amounted to $2,500. Supposing each room in the new Court-house to be decorated and furnished in like style, the aggregate cost will be at least $100,000.

Already the marble of which the Court-house is built has become terribly discolored, particularly in the east and south sides—quite as much in fact as the marble of the City-hall, which has been exposed to the elements for the last 50 years. This certainly seems to show, notwithstanding the immense cost of the building and the promise that every portion of it should be of the very best material, that at least in the article of marble an inferior quality has been used.

The Broome-Street Affray—Ante-Mortem Examination.

Coroner SCHIRMER held an ante-mortem examination, yesterday, in the case of PETER S. VOORHEES, who was stabbed in Broome-street on Monday night. Mr. VOORHEES stated that STEPHEN CRAY, a friend of his, left his house at No. 319 Broome-street, on Monday afternoon, and returned at 4 o'clock with one CHARLEY SMITH, with whom VOORHEES was on bad terms, because a sister of CRAY's had not married him. The party drank some eight quarts of lager together, after which SMITH and CRAY and Miss CRAY went down-stairs, where SMITH renewed his suit, VOORHEES listening to the conversation over the banisters. Subsequently they all came back to VOORHEES' room, where a dispute occurred between CRAY and VOORHEES, the latter receiving a severe stab-wound in the right side, near the base of the heart, beside several smaller ones in the same region. He was also cut in several places in the back, and his nose was nearly severed from his face. CHARLOTTE CRAY corroborated the statement made by VOORHEES, and they both agreed that SMITH took no part in the affray. The jury rendered a verdict against STEPHEN CRAY, who is still at large. According to the evidence of his sister, CRAY only emerged from the State Prison about two months ago, having served a term of two years and eight months, on a conviction of highway robbery. VOORHEES is now lying in a critical condition at Bellevue Hospital.

The Juvenile Guardian Society—A Card from Mr. J. L. Everitt.

NEW-YORK, Tuesday, April 21, 1868.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Having waited in vain for some days for the promised refutation by Rev. D. F. ROBERTSON, Secretary of the New-York Juvenile Guardian Society, of the published statements reflecting upon said Society, I now deem it proper to make an explanation of my connection with it.

In June last I was called upon by a gentleman with whom I had been acquainted for upward of twenty years, who solicited me to act as trustee of the Society, at the same time exhibiting a copy of what purported to be its eighteenth annual report; and, finding appended to the Treasurer's report the name of another gentleman whom I had known for more than thirty years, and who was at that time President of one of our City banks, and feeling an interest in the ostensible objects of such a society, I reluctantly consented to serve as a trustee, and as such have attended two meetings of the Board, where I made the acquaintance of G. B. HUBBELL and J. T. BANCKER, Esqrs., and supposed with these gentlemen that the Society was actively prosecuting the laudable design of relieving the necessities of a destitute class of our community.

My business and the state of my health have precluded me from giving personal attention to the affairs of the Society; and, until the published statement of Mr. HUMPHREYS, I fully believed that it was entitled to all confidence. Permit me to add that, without impugning the motives or conduct of others, I have resigned the office of Trustee, and hereby publicly relinquish all connection with said Society.

J. L. EVERITT.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

THE EUROPEAN CIRCUS.—Yesterday a grand parade of the European Circus Company took place. The procession left the headquarters of the circus, corner of Broadway and Thirty-fourth-street, at about 10 A. M., and passed down Broadway to Canal-street, then to Hudson-street, and up Eighth-avenue, through Twenty-third-street, and up Sixth-avenue to the starting point. The procession, headed by eight camels and their attendants, included cars containing musicians, dens of wild animals, performing horses, Shetland ponies, and other characteristic adjuncts to a circus. A much noticeable part of the train was a car, on the top of which couched a lion. The animal is of large size, and is said to be but five years old. The last car, drawn by eight horses richly caparisoned, contained a large globe, upon which was seated a woman representing the Goddess of Liberty. Each corner of the car was also occupied by a female member of the company. The pageant, as it moved along the route designated, attracted more than ordinary attention, on account of the extensiveness and variety of the display.

BOARD OF HEALTH.—This Board met yesterday afternoon, under the direction of President GEO. B. LINCOLN. Suits were ordered against 106 individuals for violation of the Tenement-house law. Commissioner M. T. BRENNAN was placed upon the Finance Committee, to succeed Commissioner BERGEN, deceased. Dr. HARRIS' weekly report was read, showing that there were deaths during the past week—in New-York, 509, and in Brooklyn, 161—including the public institutions. "It is a fact worthy of record," continues the Registrar, "that out of the 392 deaths which occurred in City dwellings of all kinds (except hospitals, &c.) last week, 259 were ascertained to be in crowded tenement-houses that contained from 4 to 60 families each. This is 65 per cent. of the whole number of deaths in the City." The Board adjourned until Tuesday next, at 4 o'clock.

THE PRUSSIAN SCHOOL-SHIP NIOBE.—This vessel, which arrived in our harbor yesterday, is the first Prussian war ship that has ever visited the United States. She is a sailing frigate, and carries twenty-two guns, most of them smooth bore. The forty-eight cadets now on board, who are receiving their nautical education, have but recently been shipped, and are evidently very ignorant of all that pertains to a sailor's life. The cadets are received between the ages of 15 and 17. After one year's schooling they are transferred as midshipmen to the regular men-of-war. The Niobe has been at sea since September last, and has been cruising among the West India Islands. She is commanded by Capt. BERGER. It is probable that she will leave for England on Saturday next.

THE TAMMANY SOCIETY.—At a meeting of this Society on Monday evening, the following officers were unanimously elected for the ensuing year, 253 votes being cast: Sachems—John Kelly, William M. Tweed, Matthew T. Brennan, Isaac Bell, Peter B. Sweeny, Emanuel B. Hart, George W. McLean, John J. Bradley, Richard B. Connolly, Charles G. Cornell, Nathaniel Jarvis, Jr., James B. Nicholson, Edwards Pierrepont. Treasurer—Henry Vandewater. Sagamore—George W. Roome. Secretary—Wilson Small. Wiskinskie—Stephen C. Duryea. The Sachems elect were appointed a committee to make arrangements for the dedication of the new hall on Fourteenth-street on the 4th of July next, and for the reception of delegates to the National Convention.

ARRIVALS IN THE CITY.—Mr. E. Guitenez, Charge d'Affaires for Chili, is at the Clarendon Hotel. Postmaster-General A. W. Randall, of Washington; Hon. E. B. Morgan, of Aurora, and Hon. W. E. Burlock, of Connecticut, are at the St. Nicholas Hotel. Gen. Van Alen, of Boston, is at the Westminster Hotel. Hon. Thomas H. Canfield, of Vermont, Capt. Hitchins, of the British Army, and Hon. Lansing Pruyn, of Albany, are at the Fifth-avenue Hotel.

STEINWAY HALL.—Lieut.-Gov. STEWART L. WOODFORD will deliver a new lecture on the subject of "Crete and the Cretans" on Thursday evening, April 23, for the benefit of the Masonic School and Asylum Fund, at Havana, N. Y. The Seventh Regiment Band, under the direction of GRAFFULA, will be an additional feature to the programme.

BILLIARDS.—A grand billiard tournament will be given on Thurday evening at WIZEMAN'S (late McDEVITT'S) billiard-rooms in Sixth-avenue, near Thirteenth-street. It is announced that PHELAN, CARME, DEERY and WICKS will be present and play. CARME will essay a new and novel shot never before practiced in public by him.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE LIGHTHOUSE BOARD,
WASHINGTON, D. C., April 9, 1868.

NORTH SEA—LIGHT-VESSEL AT THE MOUTH OF THE EIDER RIVER.—Official information has been received at this office that in the Spring of the present year a light-vessel will be stationed westward of the mouth of the Eider River.

The light will be exhibited from the mainmast of the light-vessel, and elevated 35 feet above the level of the sea.

The light-vessel will be painted black, with the name "Eider" in white on each side, and has three masts with a black ball at each masthead.

In misty or foggy weather a bell will be sounded, and ships approaching the Eider Shoals on a wrong course will be warned by signal guns.

The light-vessel will remain in both Summer and Winter, and will only be removed when forced to do so by floating ice. If under these circumstances the vessel is not in position, the light will not be exhibited, and a black flag with a white square will be hoisted at the mizzen.

The establishment of this light will not affect the arrangements connected with the pilot and light-vessel at the mouth of the Eider.

Further notice will be given as to the time the light-vessel will be placed, and to its position.

A CARD
HOFF'S MALT EXTRACT DEPOT
will remove on May 1
from 542 Broadway to No. 2½ Murray-st., one door from Broadway.

The great extension in the sale of this health-giving tonic beverage has made it necessary for the proprietors to occupy a larger establishment. Mr. Leopold Hoff takes this occasion to thank the American public, especially the medical profession in this city, for the confidence and for the many approvals and letters of thanks bestowed upon him, and he hopes to always merit a continuance of public favor.

NEW YORK, April 8, 1868.

The convincing letters which you publish daily in great variety from many well-known people called my attention to your MALT EXTRACT, and I tried it. I suffered from general debility, and especially from loss of appetite, in the highest degree. When I took the first bottle I liked its taste very much, as it is something I never found before, and now my appetite has returned, and a remarkable strengthening of my whole system followed its use. Please, &c.
